Both sides remain grim

No indication of success in Viet talks

PARIS (AP) — Henry A. Kissinger conferred with Le Duc Tho for six hours today in the second session of their Vietnam peace talks as Hanoi declared in a broadcast that "there has not been any sign showing that the negotiations will reach any results."

President Nixon's national security adviser was the host of the meeting in an American-owned villa in suburban St. Nom la Breteche. As at Monday's meeting on Communist ground, there was no public handshaking between the two sides, reflecting the apparent chilly atmosphere of the talks following the massive American bombing raids on North Vietnam.

But Tho and his advisers emerged smiling from the villa at the end of the meeting, in marked contrast with their grim expressions when the meeting began. Kissinger also directed a wan smile toward waiting newsmen and photographers when he left the villa a few minutes later.

Both sides maintained their mutually agreed news blackout over the subjects under discussion.

The unfriendly atmosphere which surrounded Monday's meeting continued today. None of the North Vietnamese were outside to greet Kissinger on his arrival Monday, so none of the Americans were visible when Tho and his staff arrived today. However, the door was opened from the inside as the North Vietnamese reached it, while on Monday Kissinger had to open the door to the Communist villa himself.

As usual, neither side said anything about what went on in Monday's 4½-hour session. But Kissinger left the meeting without his usual smile, and there was was no public exchange of cordial farewells like those during the last round of negotiations in December.

The North Vietnamese delegation in Paris talks said privately that the public displays of friendliness were dropped because of President Nixon's bombing campaign against Hanoi and Haiphong.

Nhan Dan, the official newspaper of the North Vietnamese Communist party, said today that Hanoi's representatives had returned to the negotiations "with the seriousness and good will to bring about a correct solution to the Vietnam problem."

But Nhan Dan made clear that Hanoi was still demanding the U.S. sign the draft peace agreement Kissinger and Tho worked out in October. "If the American aggressors abandon their colonialist viewpoint, the peace agreement reached Oct. 20, 1972, can be signed," it said.

President opens up on MIGs

SAIGON (AP) — President Nixon has authorized U.S. fighter escorts to attack North Vietnamese MIGs or surface-to-air missile sites above the 20th parallel if they threaten American B52s below the northern limit Nixon has placed on the bombing of North Vietnam, reliable sources reported today.

The U.S. Command announced today that an Air Force F4 Phantom shot down a MIG21 along the 20th parallel Sunday when it threatened a flight of B52s.

The Command said that the MIG was downed "northwest of Thanh Hoa," which is only 10 miles below the 20th parallel, and spokesman refused to say just how far northwest of the city. This was interpreted as a tacit acknowledgment that the dogfight extended above the parallel.

U.S. sources outside the Command indicated today that Hanoi Radio was not lying when it reported last week that U.S. fighters escorting reconnaissance planes attacked antiaircraft defenses in Hoa Binh Province south of Hanoi. The U.S. Command denied at the time that American planes had bombed pre-selected targets above the 20th parallel, but it refused to comment on reconnaissance operations and what action fighter escorts might have taken.

Thirty-nine B52s dropped about 1,100 tons of bombs in the North Vietnamese panhandle during the 24 hours ending at 8 a.m. today, U.S. sources said.

During the same period, the Command said, U.S. fighterbombers made 128 strikes in the panhandle, destroying supply trucks and setting fuel depots afire.

Hanoi claimed that two B52s were downed Monday and today below the 20th parallel, and an said unmanned reconnaissance plane was shot down north of Hanoi on Monday, but the U.S. Command said it had no plane losses to report.

In South Vietnam, nearly 50 B52s dropped more than 1,200 tons of explosives on troop concentrations in a staging area that North Vietnamese forces used for attacks in the tri-border region of the central highlands, where the frontiers of South Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia meet.

It was the second day of heavy raids in the region between Highway 14 and the border, 10 to 20 miles northwest of Kontum. This indicated a new North Vietnamese buildup, perhaps in preparation for an attack on Kontum.

Premier Pham Van Dong of North Vietnam ordered new austerity measures and heightened military alerts for his country as Hanoi again accused President Nixon of threatening to resume the bombing of Hanoi and Haiphong.

The U.S. Command again refused to comment on Hanoi Radio statements that American planes were flying reconnaissance over Hanoi and Haiphong in preparation for resumption of the bombing there should the current round of Paris peace talks fail.

Watergate trial avoids top names

WASHINGTON (AP) — The trial of the seven men charged in connection with the break-in and alleged bugging of Democratic national headquarters will reach into the Nixon administration, but not to the top levels.

Seven current or former White House staffers or members of President Nixon's reelection effort were named Monday as anticipated witnesses as the trial opened in U.S. District Court.

Asst. U.S. Atty. Earl J. Silbert, heading the prosecution team, read a list of 60 witnesses the government expects to call, including four Nixon campaign officials, two White House staffers and a former White House secretary.

The defendants include a former White House consultant, a former official of the Committee for the Re-election of the President and another man who worked in both places.

An eight-count indictment charges them variously with burglary, conspiracy, interception of oral and wire communications and unlawful possession of intercepting devices.

Five of the men were captured at gunpoint early last June 17 inside the Democratic offices in the Watergate office - apartment complex overlooking the Potomac River.

The two others were added in the federal indictment which said the seven conspired from May 1 to the day of the breakin to illegally gain information from the headquarters. Democrats have charged that political espionage was behind the break-in but the White House steadfastly has denied any connection.

Among the prosecution witnesses slated to be called are Jeb Magruder, a top lieutenant in the White House communications office who organized and initially headed the Nixon campaign committee.

Others include Hugh W. Sloan Jr., former treasurer of the Finance Committee to Re-elect the President; Robert C. Odle Jr., personnel chief for the campaign committee, and Herbert R. Porter, who ran the surrogate-speaker program for the Nixon campaign.

Arrest woman with loaded submachine gun

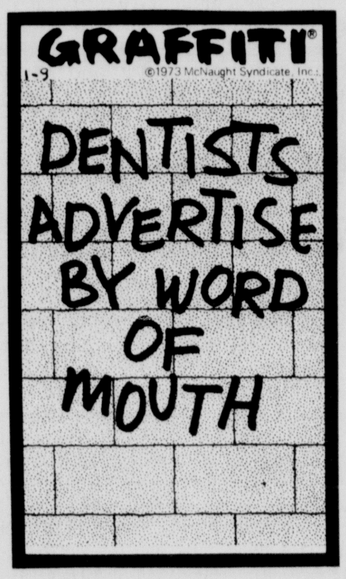
CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — A 37-year-old Cleveland woman has been charged with arson, malicious destruction of property and possession of an unlawful weapon after police said they arrested her in an east side home with a loaded submachine gun.

Police said Beatrice Buchanan entered a nearby home, went upstairs and set the building on fire. Then she fled from the home, went next door and threatened a 70-year-old neighbor, police said.

Police said the incident had apparently stemmed from an argument with the owner of the first home.

Columbus man killed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Kirk E. Williams, 20, of Columbus, was killed Monday night when a car collided with his stalled foreign-made auto here, police said.



WOUNDED BY SNIPER— A New Orleans policeman checks the pulse of a wounded comrade while another wounded officer leans against a tree in background. How many? That's the question

Police unable to find New Orleans sniper!

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Police Supt. Clarence Giarrusso says a sniper involved in the slayings of six persons slipped through a 200-man cordon from his hotel rooftop perch Monday either through "police negligence" or because he was super smart.

Giarrusso said Monday night he was convinced more than one sniper was responsible for killing the six and injuring 17 others in a two-day battle. But when pressed by newsmen, Giarrusso admitted there could have been just one sniper — the man killed by police gunfire Sunday night.

A floor-to-floor search of the 18-story Down Town Howard Johnson's hotel was made by 100 officers Monday night. They found no one and all but about a dozen officers left the scene.

The central business district, which was cordoned off by police Monday, is to be opened to normal activity today, Mayor Moon Landrieu said.

As the floor-by-floor search of the hotel began, Giarrusso said, "If they don't turn up anyone ... then he got away."

How could he have filtered to freedom through the scores of officers surrounding the hotel?

"There's a gamut of possibilities ranging from police negligence to a superbrain sniper," Giarrusso replied.

The theory of two or more snipers was based on "some" evidence, Giarrusso said, stressing that after a sniper was killed on the rooftop Sunday night, there were reports of gunfire coming from the roof and three officers were slightly wounded.

However, the superintendent admitted the possibility that the three were wounded by gunfire from fellow officers stationed in surrounding buildings.

He said he had other evidence, but would not elaborate.

A sharpshooter in an armor-plated Marine helicopter killed the sniper whose body lay on the rooftop all night and most of the day Monday.

The body was removed Monday evening and fingerprinted. Giarrusso said there was a tentative identification, but "I'm not going to announce anything tentative. When we are positive, I'll tell you."

Ethics, tax sharing bills set for General Assembly

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The 110th General Assembly was to reconvene for its second week today and await two major pieces of legislation from Gov. John Gilligan.

Gilligan's aides said both an ethics bill and a bill to appropriate $72 million in federal revenue sharing funds would be offered during the week.

The ethics bill—a new version of one Gilligan offered in the 109th—would call for full financial disclosure of elected public officials ranging from governor to township trustee.

Any public employe making more than $15,000-a-year will be required to make similar disclosures. A similar bill died following two hearings last year.

With Democrats controlling the House 58-41, the Gilligan administration hopes to see the bill move. Republicans have only a one-vote edge, 17-to-16, in the Senate, where several GOP senators are known to favor ethics legislation.

Republicans offered their own version of the revenue sharing bill in the closing weeks of the 109th, but Republicans backed off shoving it through when Gilligan said he would veto it.

Gilligan's version will allocate the funds for capital improvements.

Although House Speaker A. G. Lancione, D-99 Bellaire, wants to get the legislative machinery working early, Minority Leader Charles Kurfess, R-83 Perrysburg, had not made House Republican committee assignments as of Monday.

In related developments, Rep. John Galbraith, R-69 Maumee, said he hopes to introduce during the week a bill to repeal Ohio's so-called "blue laws" prohibiting certain sales on Sunday.

The laws, some of them in effect since 1788 when Ohio still was part of the Northwest Territory, have never been uniformly enforced.

Galbraith, who tried unsuccessfully to repeal the laws three years ago, said he will renew the effort because "they are unenforceable, and are being totally ignored all around the state, particularly around Christmas time when all the stores remain open.

Rep. Donna Pope, R-12 Parma, said Monday she plans to introduce two bills this week making adjustments in Ohio's year-old income tax.

Ohio ombudsman for consumers set

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Gov. John J. Gilligan today announced the hiring of Adelle Mitchell of Columbus as a $15,787-a-year ombudsman for the Ohio Environmental Protection Agency.

Gilligan said she would handle citizen complaints of environmental problems and "loosening potential bottlenecks in EPA's regulatory functions.

One would permit a husband and wife to file state returns separately even if they file a joint federal return, and another to correct "an error" in the law which allowed some wage earners making between $10,000 and $15,000 to enjoy an unintended break of $7 on their 1972 tax bills.

Mrs. Pope said she also plans to offer a proposed constitutional amendment to lift the $3,000 exemption ceiling under which exemptions of $500 for each dependent may only be claimed up to that amount.

Lukens account filed late; could kill plans for 1974

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — State Sen. Donald E. "Buzz" Lukens did not file his expense account for the November election on time and cannot be a political candidate for five years, Secretary of State Ted W. Brown said today.

Brown said the Butler County Board of Elections did not receive Lukens' statement until Jan. 3. It was due Dec. 22, 45 days after the election.

Lukens has for several weeks been saying he would be a Republican candidate for governor in 1974.

Brown said he was informed of the late filing this morning and told State GOP Chairman John S. Andrews of the development.

Lukens, 41, told The Associated Press the statement — listing no receipts and no expenses — was the second one he filed. He said the board did not receive the first.

"I am sure this thing can be cleared up," he said. "I sent one and the board called me before the deadline and told me I hadn't filed. I told them I had mailed one and they said, 'Mail another.' I did. I don't know what happened."

Lukens was irked at Brown because he had talked to Andrews and a newsman prior to informing Lukens. "I think it was very discourteous," he said. "He got publicity at my expense."

Lukens, a former congressman, was appointed to the state senate two years ago after a surprising second-place showing in a three-man race for governor.

The Middletown Republican won the Fourth District seat in his own right Nov. 7. Lukens is a former national president of the Young Republicans.

Brown said Ohio law provides only that an expense statement be filed within 45 days. Although his office and the courts often recognize later statements postmarked prior to the deadline, he said the law doesn't go into that area.

Lukens' statement was 11 days late. Brown said Lukens would have to prove by sworn statements any contention that it was lost in the postal system.

A candidate who does not file on time can hold the seat he was elected to but cannot run for any political office for five years, Brown said. That is the only penalty.

Nixon turns 60 today

By FRANCES LEWINE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon, observing his milestone 60th birthday today, says he "hopes to do great things" in the first four years of his seventh decade.

He doesn't feel old, he says. And to keep thinking young he suggests looking to the future, not the past, and staying in contact with younger people.

Nixon granted a birthday-eve interview to two news-service reporters, provided the discussion was limited solely to his birthday reflections. He took time out from working on his inaugural address for a 25-minute talk in his Executive Office Building hideaway.

The President said he doesn't like observing birthdays annually anymore and prefers to make note of them only on the decades—"every 10 years."

He cited his 10-year milestones starting at age 20 when he was "a junior in college, majoring in history and English, going out for football—"but I never made the team."

At 30, he was in Bougainville in the South Pacific in World War II. At 40, he had just been elected vice president. At 50, he was just defeated for the governorship of California and at 60, just re-elected for a second presidential term.

Never in those decades, "least of all at 50, did I expect to be here at this time at 60," Nixon commented.

The President plans to celebrate his birthday tonight with his wife, Pat, daughters Tricia Cox and Julie Eisenhower, his long-time personal secretary, Rose Mary Woods, and close Florida friend C.G. "Bebe" Rebozo.

He said he expects his daughters and Rebozo, who recently turned 60 himself, will give him a "pretty good kidding" about passing the milestone.

Sitting back in an easy chair, Nixon began his birthday reflections with a discourse on the ideal age for politicians to launch their careers. He suggested between 25 and 40 for the House of Representatives because "it's a back-breaking physical job if you do it well" and it takes about 25 years to get the seniority needed to become a

Wholesale farm price rise largest in past 26 years

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wholesale farm prices posted the biggest monthly increase in 26 years last month with a climb of 6.8 per cent, the government reported today.

The report, by the Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics, blamed weather damage to crops as the main reason for the big increase.

The sharp climb in food prices boosted the government's over-all wholesale price index 1.8 per cent in December, the largest in 22 years. The increase was slightly less, 1.6 per cent, on a seasonally adjusted basis.

Prices of a broad range of industrial raw materials rose three-tenths of 1 per cent while wholesale consumer finished goods ready for market at retail had climbed 1.2 per cent, the report said.

The big increase in prices of farm products, largely uncontrolled by federal price regulations, included boosts of 21.1 per cent for grains, 16.9 per cent for eggs, 13.6 per cent for hay and oil seeds, 9.4 per cent for livestock, 7.8 per cent for plant and animal fibers, eight-tenths of 1 per cent for poultry and one-tenth of 1 per cent for milk.

The only declines was 5.1 per cent for fruits and vegetables.

Grains were 44.1 per cent higher than a year ago, livestock was 22.4 per cent above last year and eggs were up 25.8 per cent over the year.

The rise in prices of farm products was the largest since March 1947 and the over-all rise in all wholesales prices was the biggest since January 1951, the bureau said.

5-state brownout threatened

FAIRMONT, W.Va. (AP) — One million Monongahela Power Co. customers hung under the threat of a massive five-state brownout today as company workmen strove to repair a leaking generating station boiler.

A Monongahela spokesman Monday night urged electric consumers in north-central West Virginia, western Pennsylvania, western Maryland, sections of Virginia and eastern Ohio to use only necessary appliances and lights as the firm dealt with temporary loss of a large bloc of power generation.

Repairs were to be completed sometime today to the boiler at the 550,000-kilowatt generator at the company's Fort Martin power station north of Morgantown. The boiler's shutdown Monday and lingering subfreezing temperatures combined to create the danger of a brownout or even a total blackout, the spokesman said.

He added that critical power drain periods are from 9 a.m. to noon, and from 4 p.m. until 9 p.m. daily, and asked that customers turn off unnecessary lights, delay use of clothes driers, dishwashers and irons and reduce settings on thermostats for electrically heated homes.

Monongahela itself serves West Virginia, Ohio and Virginia, and supplies power for West Penn Power Co. in Pennsylvania and Potomac Edison Co. in Maryland.

Gun-toter draws fine, suspended sentence

A Washington C. H. man arrested in a downtown bar in November after he was found to be carrying a loaded .22 caliber pistol pleaded guilty to a reduced charge in Muncipal Court Monday afternoon.

Assistant City Solicitor Dennis Ulrich had requested that the concealed weapons charge against Virgil F. West, 33, of 1025 Briar Ave., be reduced from a felony to a misdemeanor since West had no previous record. Acting Judge John Bryan granted the request, and West pleaded guilty to the lesser count.

West was fined $200 and costs and sentenced to 30 days in jail. Judge Bryan suspended the jail term for one year pending good behavior.

Police said West was arrested Nov. 17 in the H & H Bar, E. Court St., after they received a complaint of a man with a gun.

RUSSELL DAY, 78, of 307 N. North St., charged with carrying a concealed weapon and assault on a police officer, pleaded innocent to the two charges stemming from a gun-carrying incident in the Emerald Inn, 114 S. Fayette St., Saturday night.

Acting Judge Bryan set bond at $5,000.

Day, according to police, became violent at police headquarters while being searched by officers following his arrest on a concealed weapons charge and struck Police Capt. Charles Foster in the mouth, lacerating his lip and knocking a tooth loose.

Officers said Day had pulled a .38 caliber pistol from his coat as they walked into the bar and they were forced to wrestle it from his grasp.

Day was incarcerated in the city jail in lieu of bond.

FOUR OTHER persons forfeited bond when they failed to appear on various disturbance charges.

Marshall D. Ball, 29, Pompano Beach, Fla., and Frank Merritt, 49, Rt. 1, New Holland, both forfeited $50 bond on complaints of disturbing the peace by intoxication filed by police.

Both were arrested in the downtown area Friday night.

Forfeiting $50 bond on disturbing the peace charges were Charles E. Howell Jr., 24, of 317 S. North St., and Larry L. Duncan, 22, of 711 Briar Ave.

Supreme Court to review federal jail responsibility

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The suicide of a Texas youth has prompted the Supreme Court to review the government's responsibility over conditions in local jails.

On any given day, about 4,000 federal prisoners are in state and local jails waiting to be tried or sentenced.

The jails often are overcrowded and the facilities substandard, Chief Judge John R. Brown of the U.S. Circuit Court has said. Inmates routinely subject other prisoners to "varieties of subhuman treatment that no citizen of a civilized nation ... should be compelled to endure," Brown wrote last July.

The judge and two others, John Minor Wisdom and Irving L. Goldberg, wanted their court to reconsider its ruling that the parents of the youth, Reagan E. Logue of Corpus Christi, were not entitled to damages for his death.

The 18-year-old boy faced federal trial on charges of conspiring to smuggle 229 pounds of marijuana into the United States when he was placed in the Nueces County jail.

Doctors, mindful of a suicide attempt and a diagnosis that the youth was acutely psychotic, had recommended he be kept in a hospital, the appeal said.

One day young Logue removed the long bandage from his arm and hanged himself.

The parents are seeking the $5,000 in damages awarded in 1971 by U.S. Dist. Court Judge Owen D. Cox of Corpus Christi but reversed by the Circuit Court.

The appeal tests whether the U.S. government is exempt from liability under federal law. But, it also says, there is a deeper, fundamentally moral issue at stake: "the conditions to which the federal government subjects its prisoners when it turns them over to local jails."

The Justice Department opposed the review.

The case will be argued before the court in March or April with a final decision due before the end of June.

In another action Monday the justices cut down a major women's-rights case.

Sandusky may draw 3 medics

FREMONT, Ohio (AP) — The administrator of Sandusky County Memorial Hospital said he has received five responses from doctors interested in $75,000 worth of grants to attract two pediatricians and a general practioner to the area.

John Gettman said the responses came from two pediatricians and three generalists, but said no decision has been made on who will receive the individual $25,000 grants.

Gettman said the offering of the grants was made last month because the hospital is "in a tight situation where we had to make bold moves."

Sandusky County, with 65,000 residents, has no pediatrician and a lack of general practioners.

He said the reaction of the community to the grants has been "basically favorable," but that the medical profession has made no response, "neither negative or affirmative."

He said the doctors who receive the grants can do anything they wish with the money. That includes, he said, "putting the money in a tin can and burying it."

Gettman said the offer of direct grants is no different than a community proposing to build an office with free rent to attract doctors.

"It's according to where you want to put the money," he said.

Pierre Van Cortlandt became New York State's first lieutenant governor in 1777. His home was Van Cortlandt Manor, which still overlooks where the Croton River joins the Hudson River in Croton-on-Hudson in Westchester County.

Opinion And Comment

For the Second Inaugural

The Washington Post reports that in preparation for Jan. 20 President Nixon has been studying a number of inaugural addresses, including those of Franklin D. Roosevelt. It does not necessarily follow that he plans to use FDR's approach to domestic affairs as a model for his own second term in office.

It is an intriguing thought, all the same. Roosevelt said in 1937, "I see one-third of the nation ill-housed, ill-clad, ill-nourished" and expressed his conviction that the American people would take steps to end this state of affairs. That would not be a bad frame of mind in which to address ourselves to the problems of today.

The situation is much different in some ways. At the time of FDR's second inaugural the nation was struggling out of the Great Depression and, though Hitler and Mussolini were in power and the smell of world war was in the air, the emphasis here at home was largely on domestic concerns. The main thrust of Mr. Nixon's presidency thus far has been in the area of international relations; he has been preoccupied not only with the war in Vietnam, but with the important task of improving U. S. relations with the Soviet Union and China.

Meanwhile, attention to domestic affairs has lagged. The second Nixon inaugural would be an auspicious time to turn the country back again to a closer examination of its problems here at home. The President might do well to set forth the shortcomings of our society as he sees them and then in effect paraphrase Franklin Roosevelt's words in 1937: "It is not in despair that I paint you that picture. I paint it for you in Hope — because the nation, seeing and understanding the injustice in it, proposes to paint it out."

THE NATION . . . by Martin F. Nolan

From Princeton to Palm Springs

WASHINGTON — The scene was the campus of Princeton. The seminar was called "The United States: Its Problems, Impact and Image in the World."

The dinner audience on the night of Dec. 4, 1968, applauded the guest speaker, who had just accepted an appointment from the President-elect. The speech was unpublicized at the time.

"My primary responsibility, as I see it," said Henry A. Kissinger, "is to make sure that every responsible point of view — and responsible is defined in a very generous manner — that every responsible point of view gets a fair hearing.

"I want to say now, said the Harvard don, confronting his peers, "that it is in providing this spectrum of considerations and hearing every point of view of significance that I would want the success of my efforts to be judged

"The great danger of war seems to me not to lie in the deliberate actions of wicked men but in the inability of harassed men to manage events that have run away with them," he continued.

SPEAKING with a doomed foresight as poignant as the ruins of Bach Mai Hospital in Hanoi, he said, "When the scope for action is at a minimum. When the knowledge is greatest, the scope for creative action has often disappeared . . . I am trying to say that whether one acts or doesn't act depends on some moral or philosophical judgment as well as on judgments of fact."

His moral and philosophical judgment led him to the White House, Kissinger added. "Now these are some of the concerns which have led me to accept the offer of the President-elect. He has insisted that he wanted to hear every point of view, that he wanted to make sure that the best talent in the country, whether or not it agreed with pronouncements he made in the past, would receive a hearing.

"And I can tell you, speaking for myself as well as for the President-elect, that every effort will be made to give the best talent in the country an opportunity to present their views.

"Many of you have worked with me for many years and you know what I have stood for and you know, I hope, that I will continue to stand for this no matter what my position is."

To all those people who called him "Henry" — John Kenneth Galbraith, Arthur Schlesinger, Martin Peretz, George Bell, Robert Manning, Charles Mathias — Kissinger pledged that "the doors of my office are open to your ideas to invite you to share them with me."

FOUR YEARS later Kissinger refused to share ideas with the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. According to several reliable accounts, President Nixon didn't heed "the best talent" in the Joint Chiefs of Staff, never mind the best talent in the country.

Four Decembers ago Kissinger spoke humbly at Princeton about "what I conceive to be my role in the policy-making process." This December, as American bombs were falling over North Vietnam, Kissinger was in Palm Springs, Calif., vacationing.

He stayed at the mansion of a movie producer, Bob Evans, ex-husband of actress Ali MacGraw far away from Princeton seminars and Harvard classroom.

From Princeton to Palm Springs, Henry Kissinger presses on, searching for "the best talent in the country" and "every responsible point of view" on which "I would want the success of my efforts to be judged."

A WORD EDGEWISE . . . by George Meany

Labor and the 'Cold War'

EDITOR'S NOTE: George Meany, president of the AFL-CIO, is the guest writer of this column today at the invitation of John P. Roche, the regular columnist.

We of the labor movement are constantly being called all sorts of terrible names because we still believe there are wolves in the world.

For instance, we are denounced as "Cold War dinosaurs" because we refuse to take the Soviet "trade union movement" seriously. What we know is that this bogus union is headed by a secret policeman — it's as much of a union as the old Nazi "Labor Front."

We refuse to be taken in by the neo-isolationists who say that the rest of the world is none of our business. It's too bad about the Soviet Jews, they say, but that's their internal affair. We can't be the policeman of the world.

WELL, I don't suggest that we should be the policeman of the world, but I would urge some of our intellectual friends to read the Nobel lecture of Aleksandr Solzhenitsyn — the lecture he couldn't deliver because the Russian government wouldn't allow him to accept the prize. "There are no 'internal affairs' left on our crowded earth," wrote Solzhenitsyn. "and mankind's sole salvation lies in everyone making everything his business; in the people of the East being vitally concerned with what is thought in the West; the people of the West vitally concerned with what goes on in the East."

We in the American labor movement are vitally concerned. For example, you don't have to be Jewish to like Israel. You just have to believe in certain principles — which happen coincidentally to be the principles of our labor movement. What are they?

First is a belief in democracy. But, of course, everybody believes in democracy. Maybe so . . . but there are a number of people who, when pushed, qualify this. They are for democracy but . . . they are for democracy under certain conditions. How often have you heard so-called sophisticated people say, "Oh, I'm all for democracy, but let's face it: you can't have democracy in the underdeveloped countries" — in what they fashionably call the "Third World."

This form of cultural snobbery turned up a while back in the "New York Times Magazine" when Prof. John Kenneth Galbraith presented his thoughts on a recent trip to China. He was very impressed by what he saw, but we found his views in one area particularly interesting. As you may know, Dr. Galbraith thinks that trade unions are obsolete in a country like the United States — they keep making trouble for economic "experts." He looked around for unions in Communist China, but there weren't any. He concluded, "Unions seem to have been a casualty of the Cultural Revolution. The Chinese are assigned to jobs and they are required to remain where they are assigned."

WELL, I GUESS that explains why there are no unions. You can't have unions in a society where people are forced to work when and where the government tells them to. But what does the liberal professor think of this system? Listen: "The Chinese economy isn't the American or European future. But it is the Chinese future. And let there be no doubt: for the Chinese it works."

In other words, it's no good for us Americans and other enlightened folks, but it's okay for the Chinese. It's okay if they don't have unions. It's okay if they can't choose where and when to work. After all, as Galbraith sees it, they're just Chinese. They don't know any better.

This may be the fashionable way of thinking in some intellectual circles, but — if anyone is interested in a plumber's view — it is narrow-minded, bigoted, and patronizing. And for those of us with good memories it has a curious resemblance to a line we used to hear: "Nazism is not for Americans, but it's the kind of system the Germans need."

Richard Burton gives brigade $200,000

LONDON (AP) — Actor Richard Burton reportedly turned down a royal request to star in a charity concert to raise money for a British ambulance brigade. Instead, he sent the brigade 100,000 pounds, or $200,000.

The Daily Express said today that the request came from Princess Margaret, sister of Queen Elizabeth II and president of the St. John Ambulance Brigade, which operates on donations.

Today In History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Tuesday, Jan. 9, the ninth day of 1973. There are 356 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1945, American forces invaded the Japanese-held island of Luzon in the Philippines.

On this date:

In 1719, France declared war on Spain.

In 1788, Connecticut became the fifth state to ratify the Constitution

In 1861, Mississippi seceded from the Union.

In 1919, Grand Duchess Charlotte ascended the throne in Luxembourg.

In 1942, at the beginning of the Pacific war, Japanese reinforcements were pouring into the Philippines.

In 1964, anti-American riots broke out in Panama.

Ten years ago: The National Academy of Sciences concluded that the United States had enough natural resources to meet its needs for at least the rest of this century.

Five years ago: A U.S. Surveyor space vehicle made a soft landing on the moon and sent back pictures of the lunar landscape.

One year ago: The once-great luxury liner Queen Elizabeth was destroyed by fire in the Hong Kong harbor, where the ship was being fitted as a floating university.

Today's birthdays: President Nixon is 60. Folk singer Joan Baez is 32.

Thought for today: A wise man will make more opportunities than he finds — Sir Francis Bacon, English philosopher, 1561-1626.

Canada curbs amphetamines

The Canadian government has decided to quit fooling around with abuse of amphetamines. The serious problem such drugs pose in the United States suggests the wisdom of similar action here.

New regulations in Canada in effect ban the two most popular uses of amphetamines, as pep pills and in diet control. Henceforth they may be used only in treatment of six specific conditions. These cnclude epilepsy, Parksinson's disease, and narcolepsy, the latter an uncontrollable tendency to fall asleep. The others are low blood pressure associated with anesthesia, some forms of mental retardation with brain disfunction, and hyperkinetic disorders in children.

A time limit is placed on unreviewed use of amphetamines even under a doctor's prescription. If use for longer than 30 days is deemed necessary by a doctor, he must submit the name of another doctor who confirms the diagnosis.

This seems direct and to the point. Some might argue that continued use of amphetamines in diet control and as a stimulant ought to be permitted under medical supervision, but in view of how badly this has been abused we have doubts about it.

What the situation requires is firm restriction of these drugs to cases where they are medically indicated. The casual use of amphetamines for other purposes which is so common in the United States ought to be stopped.

Dear Abby:

A shower of bath arguments

DEAR ABBY: Germaine Greer is going to crucify you. She went on record as saying that a woman's natural odor is nothing to be ashamed of, and any man who didn't like it could go jump in the lake. And now you come along with your statement that a man should bathe daily and a woman can't bathe enough!

As the world's most widely read columnist, how are zou going to defend yourself against Germaine Greer, the most outspoken proponent of Women's Lib?

ABBY FAN IN BOSTON

DEAR ABBY: Germaine Greer can to go her mikveh and I'll go to mine. (P.S. Mikveh means bath.)

DEAR ABBY: I am mystified over your remarks on bathing. Thanks for enlightening men. I had always heard that all men were created equal. I never realized that women were born "dirter" than men. I knew that a woman is paid less for doing the same job as a man, but until now I didn't know it was because she was offensive.

I'm amazed at you, Abby. You must have water on the brain from spending so much time in the bathtub.

S. K. H.

DEAR S. K. H.: Men and women are NOT created equal-anatomically speaking. Unlike the male reproductive organ, the female's is an orifice which constantly produces a secretion which is normally somewhat odoriferous. She is not necessarily "unclean," but a woman who wants to be forever fragrant will not spare the soap and water.

DEAR ABBY: In conjunction with your recent letter concerning bathing: Will you please stress the fact that MEN need underarm deodorant as well as women?

My husband and I are square dancers, and I sure wish I could tell some of these men that it isn't their swinging that makes me dizzy, it's just the fact that I am holding my breath-and a gal can hold her breath just so long before she loses consciousness.

Please print this, Abby. There are a lot of square dancers, and it could be a lot more fun.

A SQUARE IN MICHIGAN

DEAR SQUARE: Consider it done. It's not easy to get through while you're holding your nose.

DEAR ABBY: I am one man who wants to thank you for taking the stand you did regarding women bathing.

Several years ago I had a secretary who splashed on cologne several times a day. (She probably couldn't stand her own odor.) Between the cologne and her body odor, she turned me against one of the world's loveliest fragrances.

I knew she didn't bathe much because her elbows were always dirty, and her filthy feet showed through her hosiery!

She was the talk of the office and although her work was excellent I had to let her go. I frankly told her why, which didn't seem to bother her.

I have let men go for the same reason. Some men may shower daily but they use deodorant to take care of the perspiration acquired during the stress and strain of the daily routine, which is unfair to the coworkers. Forgive my typing. I typed this myself while my secretary was out to lunch.

NEW YORK (AP) — Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

Cancer is the disease people dread the most, but heart disease takes twice as big a toll. The No. 1 killer, it claims each year the lives of 358.4 out of every 100,000 Americans. Cancer kills 160.9.

Natural disasters often take a greater toll of bird life than of animal or human life. For example, flights of migrating Lapland longspurs were caught in a vast, blinding, wet snowstorm over Minnesota and Iowa in 1904. Naturalists estimated that more than a million birds died.

Quotable notables: "No man is justified in doing evil on the grounds of expediency."— Theodore Roosevelt.

Quality not size: So much genius and knowledge spread from ancient Athens that many people have the idea it was a gigantic metropolis. Actually, however, even during its golden age under Pericles, Athens had a population of only 300,000 — smaller than that of Omaha. This is no knock on Omaha. It hasn't been around as long as Athens.

Worth remembering: "The three ages of man are: school tablet, aspirin tablet — and stone tablet."

Death comes to people in odd ways: Agathocles, tyrant of Sicily, was killed at 95 when he swallowed a toothpick.

Robert Burton, author of "That Anatomy of Melancholy," astrologically picked the day he would die — and did.

On the other hand, Chalcas, the soothsayer, died laughing because he thought he had outlived the predicted hour of his death.

It was Jonathan Swift who observed, "We have just enough religion to make us hate but not enough to make us love one another."

New Way Found To Stop Hair Loss, Grow More Hair

HOUSTON, TEXAS — If you don't suffer from male pattern baldness, you can now stop your hair loss . . . and grow more hair.

For years "they said it couldn't be done". But now a firm of laboratory consultants has developed a treatment for both men and women, that is not only stopping hair loss . . . but is really growing hair!

They don't even ask you to take their word for it. They invite you to try the treatment and see for yourself!

Naturally they would not offer this opportunity unless the treatment worked. However, it is impossible to help everyone.

The great majority of cases of excessive hair fall and baldness are the beginning and more fully developed stages of male pattern baldness and cannot be helped.

But, if you are not already slick bald, how can you be sure what is actually causing your hair loss Even if baldness may seem to "run in your family," this is certainly no proof of the cause of YOUR hair loss.

Hair loss caused by sebum can also run in your family, and many other conditions can cause hair loss. No matter which one is causing your hair loss, if you wait until you are slick bald and your hair roots are dead, you are beyond help. So, if you still have any hair on top of your head, and would like to stop your hair loss and grow more hair . . . now is the time to do something about it before it's too late.

Wall Street: Back to fundamentals

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Every so often a fad develops in the stock market and is acclaimed as the new way to wealth. Its promoters scorn old techniques and speak condescendingly about the old fools who adhere to them.

The fad of the 1960s, as most investors recall, was performance. If a stock didn't pay off immediately you got rid of it.

The fad worked wonders for its promoters, many of them mutual fund managers, some of whom became rich and celebrated. They developed theories to explain their brilliance and managed to steal time from money-making to impart their wisdom to graduate business school classes.

As with any fad, this one expired as the more serious students of the market caught up with it. It was found that while performance-minded brokers and managers earned yachts for themselves, their customers were left up the creek in a canoe.

By the late 1960s the performance theory was riddled. Several studies showed that some funds would have done much better by just sitting on their stocks instead of selling and buying time after time. And then the market collapsed, taking with it what was left of performance.

While the personality of the current and future market cannot be easily characterized, as was the market of the 1960s, a good case can be made for a return to fundamentals — a clear reaction to the earlier excesses.

Evidence of this may be sparse but it is there in the big bank accounts and insurance policies that ordinary people own in preference to stocks. And when these people return to the market, it's a good bet they'll remain cautious.

Adding documentary evidence to the conservative argument are statistics just compiled by Wright Investors' Service showing that blue-chip stocks have grown in value during every decade this century, including the '30s.

If you bought the stocks that make up the Dow Jones industrial average, the study shows, you would have a price gain of 1875.25 per cent and a dividend gain of 1645.94 per cent, or an average annual growth of 9.4 per cent for the past 72 years.

Even in the late and unlamented 1930s the average showed an investment growth of 2.9 per cent a year. Prices fell by 20.32 per cent, but this was offset by dividend gains of 40.22 per cent for the 10 years.

Massillon still fights city strike

MASSILLON, Ohio (AP)— Massillon disposed of its teachers strike Monday night and turned its attention today toward settling a three-day-old work stoppage by city employes.

Striking teachers had announced that they reached agreement with the Massillon Board of Education some 12 hours after a Stark County judge ordered them to return to work.

The teachers had declined to respond to the court order, but spokesmen for the Massillon Education Association announced late Monday night that agreement had been reached and that teachers would return to classrooms this morning.

There was no progress reported in the city's other strike, involving around 50 garbage collectors, street repairmen, painters, electricians and park department employes.

The workers, members of Local 996 of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employes, began striking this weekend after the city offered them only a 5.5 per cent salary increase.

Blue Cross rate boost rejected

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—A request by Hospital Services, Inc., for a 15.7 per cent rate increase for direct pay subscribers has been denied, the Ohio Department of Insurance said Monday.

The increase was refused because the Department of Insurance believes the firm is not doing its job in keeping hospital costs down, according to Insurance Director Kenneth Deshelter.

"It is the responsibility of Blue Cross to take action to control hospital costs or to act as an adversary on behalf of its subscribers. It is our feeling that this is not the case with Canton Blue Cross," DeShelter said.

The 4,860-mile-long Trans-Canada Highway is one of the longest in the world.

½ cup coarsely chopped sweet mixed pickles

Combine flour, sesame seed, salt and pepper; mix well. Dip chicken in egg; coat with flour mixture. Cook in oil until lightly browned on all sides.

Combine remaining ingredients; mix well. Pour over chicken. Cover and cook over low heat until chicken is tender, about 30 minutes. Serve with hot rice and assorted condiments as desired. Serves 4.

Rumanian cooks like to season with paprika and dill. They're the ingredients that add to the flavorful appeal of this chicken recipe, one of many excellent ones in a new cookbook, "Yogurt Cookery — Good and Gourmet" by Kay Shaw Nelson (Luce). Miss Shaw has assembled over 250 recipes from appetizers through desserts that will delight yogurt lovers. One of my favorites is:

CHOCOLATE cones are filled with Cherry Creme.

BAKED YOGURT CHICKEN

1 frying chicken, 2½ to 3 pounds, cut up
Salt, pepper to taste
6 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 tablespoons flour
1 tablespoon paprika
2 cups yogurt at room temperature
¼ pound fresh mushrooms, cleaned and sliced
2 tablespoons fresh lemon juice
2 tablespoons chopped fresh dill or parsley

Wash the chicken pieces and wipe dry. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Melt 4 tablespoons of butter in a large skillet and fry the chicken pieces in it until golden on all sides. With tongs remove to a buttered shallow baking dish.

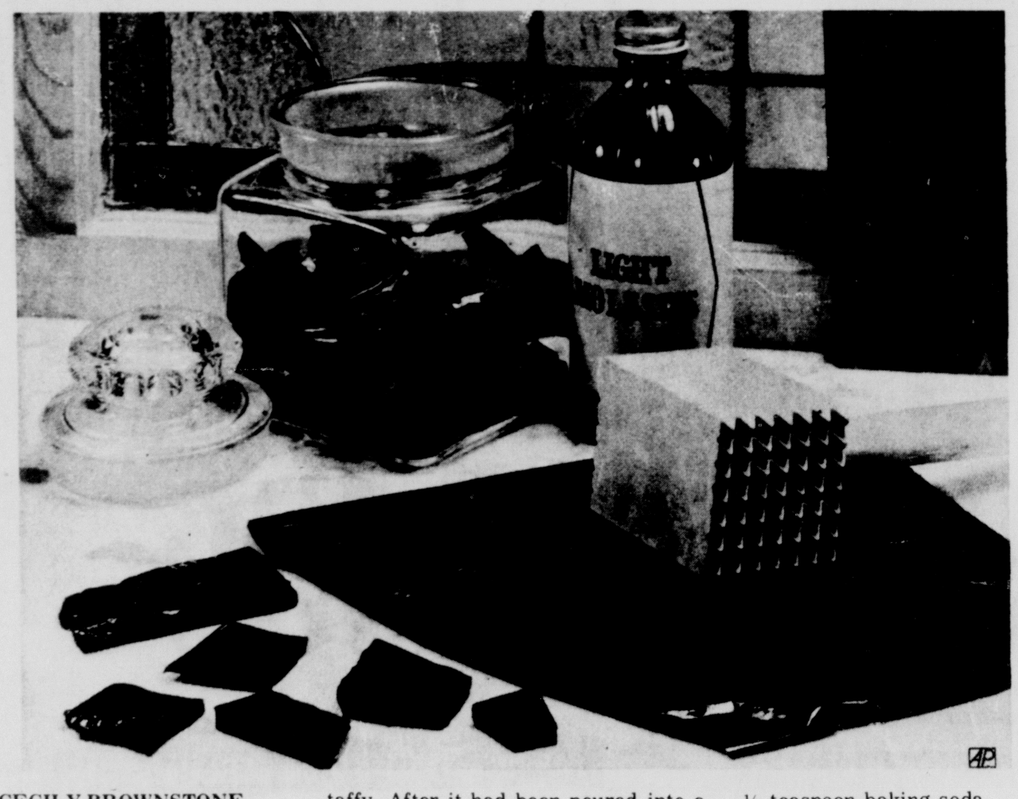
Sprinkle the flour and paprika into the pan juices and cook, stirring, for 1 minute. Stir in the yogurt and mix well. Spoon over the chicken pieces. Saute the mushrooms in the remaining 2 tablespoons of butter and the lemon juice for 1 minute and spoon over the casserole ingredients. Sprinkle with the dill.

Bake, covered, in a preheated moderate oven (325 degrees F) for about 1¼ hours, or until the chicken is tender. Serves 4.

A good dessert makes a grand final to any meal. Whether you're serving chicken or beef, the family will go for this chocolate treat. Remember the recipe next time you entertain. It's an eye-catching treat that guests will long remember.

To chop correctly use a large sharp-pointed knife; hold the point firmly against the cutting board with one hand and with the other bring blade up and down moving in a semi-circle.

Molasses taffy comes from Pennsylvania



By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

A friend sent us some homemade candy that we had never tasted before. Curious about it, we asked for the recipe and here it is along with the donor's note about its origin:

"When I was a little girl growing up in Scranton, Pennsylvania a lot of our neighbors were immigrants from Wales and the women in these families loved to make candy. One of the most popular recipes was for a molasses taffy. After it had been poured into a pan and had set, it was cracked — usually with the good solid handle of an old-fashioned kitchen utensil — into irregular pieces. We children used to suck on it to get the full molasses flavor. Because we were fascinated at seeing it hammered, not cut, we always called it 'crackin' candy'."

MOLASSES TAFFY

2 cups sugar
1-3 cup butter
¼ cup light molasses
½ teaspoon baking soda
¼ teaspoon salt
½ cup water
¼ teaspoon lemon extract

Into a heavy medium saucepan turn all the ingredients except the lemon extract. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until sugar is dissolved and mixture comes to a boil. Continue cooking, stirring occasionally, to 250 degrees on a candy thermometer or when a little of the mixture, dropped into very cold water, forms a firm ball. Continue cooking, stirring slowly but constantly, to 290 degrees on a candy thermometer or when a little of the mixture, dropped into very cold water, becomes hard and brittle. Remove from heat; add lemon extract, blending well. Pour quickly into a buttered pan (13 by 9 by 2 inches). Cool; use a meat mallet or some similar device to crack into irregular pieces. Makes 1 pound.

Finely powdered sodium bicarbonate is used as a leavening agent and as an important ingredient in commercially prepared baking powders.

When yeast dough is smooth and springy, and when tiny bubbles appear beneath the surface of the dough, it has been kneaded enough.

"Bread flour" is milled from hard wheat and is fairly high in protein.

PUCO chief seeks powers to regulate cable TV firms

By DEAN SCHOTT
Associated Press Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The 40-year-old chief of the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio wants to push his agency into an area never before chartered for state government regulation—the cable television industry.

Henry Eckhart said the PUCO "should take jurisdiction and protect consumers" from the industry that reaches into nearly every one of Ohio's 88 counties.

The aim of state regulation would be, he said, "to make sure cable television is available to as many persons in Ohio as possible.

"We do not need cable television companies coming in and picking off just the wealthy communities. What about the inner city?"

The commission chairman said he is concerned that inner city residents, as well as persons living in rural and unincorporated areas, "would not be able to negotiate freely and fairly with the companies."

For a monthly charge, the companies offer clearer signals of local stations and a selection of out-of-town stations, round-the-clock news and stock market information.

Regulation of the industry up to now has been through the Federal Communications Commission and a patchwork of municipal ordinances.

But, Eckhart sees the need for state regulation as necessary to protect Ohio consumers. He said the regulations would cover such things as the quality of the service offered and the prices a company could ask.

However, the shape of the legislation is still in the works. Eckhart is awaiting a Legislative Service Commission report on the industry in Ohio and plans to base his regulatory proposals on the study's findings.

The study was began by Richard Masek, a Legislative Commission researcher, last July. He hopes to finish the report in two months.

Masek said there are about 125 parent cable television companies operating more than 200 franchises around the state.

Youth stricken with meningitis

MOWRYSTOWN — A 16-year-old boy from near this Highland County village was listed in critical condition Monday in Cincinnati Children's Hospital, suffering from bacterial meningitis.

Jeff Harvey, a junior at Whiteoak High School, is the second person in this area to develop meningitis in a month.

County health officials discounted the threat of an epidemic, but urged people who have been in close contact with the boy to see their physician.

White House staff slashed

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon, according to close associates, has cut the White House professional staff by about 14 per cent since announcing plans to reorganize and slim down the federal bureaucracy.

These sources said even more will go.

Nixon, who has presided over history's biggest expansion of the White House staff, told newsmen at Camp David, Md., last November that he expected to set an example for government efficiency by ordaining that the most sizable personnel cutbacks would come in the White House staff.

To date, according to White House figures, 23 White House professionals have been announced as returning to private life and 13 others have been announced as being in line for other positions within the bureaucracy.

It is on the basis of these figures that White House sources said there already has been a reduction of about 14 per cent in professional personnel.

No figures have been given on secretarial and clerical employes who may have left because their bosses were fired or sent to other agencies.

The White House figures apparently are based upon a budgeted personnel limited to 510 bodies—male or female—for the 1973 fiscal year that ends June 30. Recent Civil Service reports would indicate, however, that the White House obviously has topped its personnel ceiling and may indeed be employing more than 600 persons—plus an undisclosed number borrowed from such agencies as the Defense and State departments and the Central Intelligence Agency.

Subsidy end blow to farmers

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The U.S. Department of Agriculture is discontinuing its subsidies to farmers who spend money improving their soil and may also be planning to stop paying farmers to set side a portion of their land from production.

State Agriculture Director Eugene Abercrombie said Monday that if both programs are ended, Ohio farmers will lose at least $71 million in subsidies paid each year by the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee.

The news comes amid increasing uncertainty that Ohio farmers will be able to get any federal help at all in getting back on their feet following the disastrous fall harvest, delayed by wet weather.

Abercrombie said the USDA has already discontinued its Rural Environmental Assistance Program, which subsidized farmers who did contour plowing, drainage tile installation or other soil improvement work on their land.

And he said it appears the program of payments to farmers for taking part of their land out of production is also in a state of suspended animation and may not be resumed.

"This is going to mean that we'll be back strictly on a supply and demand basis and farmers will have no incentive to do the conservation work we spent so many years putting together," Abercrombie said.

The director said he hopes congressional pressure will force President Nixon to reverse his decision last month cutting off the flow of low-interest emergency assistance loans to farmers who need help getting started on next year's crops in the wake of the bad fall.

The alternative, he said, is to use $1.5 million from another federal program to guarantee about $50 million in loans at commercial rates to farmers who need them.

But the strings attached to that $1.5 million may not permit the loan guarantees and the director said if that's the case, "we'll be up a real stump."

London flu not heavy in state

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Dr. John Ackerman, chief of the Ohio Bureau of Preventive Medicine, Monday said there have been no widespread outbreaks of London flu in the state, despite the federal government's inclusion of the state on a growing list of states reporting the disease.

The National Center for Disease Control (NCDC) in Atlanta put Ohio on its growing list because two cases were reported in Cleveland, according to Ackerman.

Ackerman added that the two cases reported in Cleveland haven't even been checked yet.

The Cleveland area has reported a slight increase in respiratory illnesses, "but the rest of the state is pretty quiet," he said.

At least 18 states have reported cases of the new A-England virus, which is known as the London flu.

"The London flu is no worse than any other flu. It's just different," Ackerman said.

The medical chief said the flu lasts from five days to a week and warned the elderly and persons with heart disease or emphysema to see a doctor immediately if they catch it.

"It may now be too late for such people to get flu shots this year, but a booster shot may help if they had a flu shot last year," Ackerman said.

3 houses hit by blast, fire

CINCINNATI (AP)—A gas explosion and fire destroyed one house in nearby Addyston and heavily damaged two other structures late Monday night and early today.

No injuries were reported.

The sole occupant of the house was a partially blind man who said he smelled gas and called police. A policeman who responded also smelled gas, and got the man out of the house just before the explosion.

An adjoining house and a restaurant caught fire.

TV Viewing

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Gene Shalit will join the regular cast of NBC's "Today" show next Monday. So prepare yourself. He's a wild man in both word and appearance.

He's also one of the few movie critics in this hamlet with a sense of humor, a serious crime in Manhattan reviewing circles.

Physically, he resembles a freelance anarchist. His hair goes in all directions and he sports a thick black mustache.

Some of us already know him as the movie critic whose reviews are seen on WNBC-TV here, KNBC-TV in Los Angeles and 100 other assorted NBC television affiliates around the land.

Others may know him as the guy who writes zany outbursts for the Ladies Home Journal, Newsday and Sport magazine.

Still others may know him as the movie reviewer on NBC's "Monitor" radio show or as the "Today" book editor since 1969.

It'll be good to see him turned loose on a thrice-a-week basis on "Today," where he'll continue as book editor, but he also will have a crack at sports and the lighter side of life, if such still exists.

The Shalit television style is hard to put in print. When he's deciphering a film for the citizenry, his eyebrows rise and fall with vigor and he makes no bones about his likes and dislikes.

His approach basically is that of a guy who bumps into a pal at the neighborhood tavern and tells him he's just seen a movie. A dog of a movie, sometimes. A great flick, at other times.

But he never proclaims the film "a profoundly moving experience" or some such lofty bilge. That's the best part about him. He works in plain English, with sharp, funny observations.

Shalit was born 41 years ago in Manhattan. He came to broadcasting in a roundabout way. He started off as a freelance writer, than began doing a column for the Ladies Home Journal. He also became movie critic for the now-defunct Look magazine.

He was at work committing scrivened mayhem one day when the phone rang. An NBC executive was on the other end.

"He said, 'I've been reading some of the things you write, and I've been wondering,'" Shalit recalled. "'Do you think you can talk out loud the way you write?'"

Whereupon Shalit went to audition for NBC radio. The rest is history, but he still gives his audition bad reviews.

"I tended to orate," he said. "Instead of talking to one person I was talking to "the multitudes' and that's not the way to do it. Now, it never occurs to me that anybody's watching or listening. And maybe they're not."

That's a bad attitude for a New York Critic, Shalit, a bad attitude. And a welcome one.

Blizzard of paper hampers PUCO

By DEAN SCHOTT
Associated Press Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)— Three harried men hunch wearily over 3,278 pages of fine print in the early days of 1973, trying to make up their minds if you should pay more for your telephone one day.

This tremendous task forms just part of a monumental paperjam overpowering Ohio's Public Utilities Commission—a backlog of 49 rate cases, some of them dating back to 1969.

"There will be no relief from the tremendous amount of work," said PUCO Chairman Henry Eckhart "if the utility companies continue to file cases, and the inflation that causes the cases continues."

The mountain of fine print Eckhart and his fellow commissioners, Carl Johnson and Elmer A. Keller, pored over was the harvest of testimony and exhibits from just one case— the request by Ohio Bell Telephone Co. for a $165 million a year increase in rates. It's the largest such request in Ohio history.

Going back to December 1969 is the water rate increase being sought by Ohio Water Service Co. for a small number of homeowners in Ashtabula. The most recent case was filed last month when General Telephone Co. of Marion asked for a $13.4 million annual hike in their rates.

Eckhart noted the irony of the 3,278-page report by saying it was spawned by a mere two-page request by Ohio Bell on Aug. 9, 1971.

Since then, he said, "3,500 hours have been spent on the rate request by Ohio Bell, involving engineering evaluations and auditing. We have done more preparing the Ohio Bell case than ever before."

Even though the research and eight weeks of hearings have been completed, the commission chairman said Ohio Bell will have to wait its turn for a decision. "It's a matter of first come, first serve," he said, showing that Marion Water Co., Cincinnati Gas & Electric and Toledo Edison cases are ahead of Ohio Bell.

Eckhart attributes the paperjam to the changing nature of utility cases and inadequate staff to handle the research and hearings.

"In the early 60s," he said, "the rate cases were simpler. But now they are larger, more complex and with more difficult questions involved."

Cases today, he said, require major audits by accountants and extensive analyses by engineers of the company's rate base— the equipment and facilities being used and that could be used by the utility.

As a further example of the complexity, Eckhart said, "Ohio Bell has nine different rate bands (areas) in its pending request."

The commission chairman said the agency needs more accountants, more engineers and more economists to review utility company rate applications and to testify at public hearings on the cases.

Eckhart compared his staff with that of New York Public Service Commission, noting Ohio did not even come close. He said New York has 600 persons in utility company regulation and 100 engineers, while Ohio has 112 and 7, in the respective categories.

Since he joined the PUCO, he has enlarged the staff from 129 to 195.

He said he plans to ask the 110th General Assembly for an increase over the agency's current biennial budget of $5.1 million. But he added, "Under the constraints of no new taxes and no new programs . . . it still will not be adequate."

As Eckhart sees it, "more money, more staff and a slowdown in utility cases" will be the only wedges that break up the paperjam at the PUCO.

Unusual high school caters to pregnant student body

By COURTENAY CANNADY
Associated Press Writer

BALTIMORE (AP) — With math, science and social studies, the required courses at Edgar Allen Poe High School include prenatal health and child care.

All of the school's students are pregnant.

Teen-age pregnancy, in fact, is a prerequisite to enroll at Poe.

"Being pregnant is a traumatic experience for many girls, and they need to be away from their peers to regroup their forces," explains Poe's principal, Vivian Washington.

The 520 pregnant teen-agers enrolled at the 7-year-old public school also are keeping up with students in other high schools and preparing for jobs and motherhood.

"The girls have strong feelings about themselves, that maybe they're not good persons," said Mrs. Washington, but "we say, 'All right, ... what are you going to do about the future?'

"'You're going to be a parent, responsible for another life. But first you must be responsible for yourself.'"

While at Poe, the girls also must be enrolled in health clinics and social-service programs. Nutritionists and doctors pay regular calls to supplement the care.

The curriculum is designed to ease the teen-agers' return to their former high schools or find jobs after delivery. They may transfer to their former schools six weeks after a postdelivery medical checkup.

Poe alumnae who do not return to finish high school get help finding work from job placement coordinator Jean Bowman, who says she helped find jobs for 187 girls last year.

Mrs. Washington describes Poe as a kind of crisis center where pregnant teen-agers can count on support from their classmates and teachers in an informal atmosphere.

Along with a brisk student turnover, one of the toughest problems is "puncturing the unreality" which accompanies many expectant mothers to Poe, said Lois White, a job placement staffer.

When they arrive, most students do not grasp what is required in having, and caring for, babies, Mrs. White added.

"What is needed," said Mrs. Washington, "is to bring home what being the head of a family means — the responsibility as well as the sex and pregnacy."

Vietnam war weighs heavily on Pope

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI says that a peace settlement in Vietnam still weighs on his mind.

Speaking from his studio window Sunday to a crowd of 4,000 persons gathered in St. Peter's Square, the pontiff described a peace "which seemed so close and proved to be so illusory."

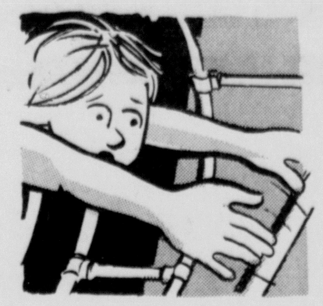
With your versatility, many fields are open to you, career-wise, but you would probably be happiest in the worlds of science, literature, the law, banking or real estate. Either music or poetry could prove stimulating hobbies. Traits to curb: secretiveness and undue suspicion of associates.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

To stimulate business, the owner of a suburban trailer park installed a set of climbing bars for children. However, in disregard of the manufacturer's advice, he placed the apparatus over a solid strip of blacktop.

One day, a 7-year-old boy lost his grip on the bars and fell heavily to the pavement. In short order, the park owner found himself on the target end of a lawsuit.

And the court ruled that the boy was indeed entitled to damages. The court said the defendant was guilty of negligence in creating a condition of special danger to the unwary young.



The rapid spread of trailer parks has focused attention on the responsibilities of the management in case of an accident. The law says the management must show both foresight and diligence in the way it maintains its premises.

BUT NOT every accident that happens in a trailer park is the park's fault. In another case, a woman was injured when a tree came crashing down on her trailer during a storm. She too sued for damages, arguing that the tree was decayed and should have been cut down.

Yet, there had been no signs of decay visible on the outside of the tree, nothing to put the management on the alert for trouble. The court laid the accident to an "act of God" and turned down the woman's claim.

Nor will the law blame the management if the victim has voluntarily "assumed the risk" of injury. Thus:

A woman taking a shower in a trailer park shower room gashed her foot on a broken tile. But when she demanded damages in court, the management pointed out that there were two other shower rooms which she knew could have been used with greater safety.

Rejecting her claim, the court said: "One who chooses to follow a dangerous course when there is a safe course known and available is said to have assumed the risk. This relieves the defendant of responsibility."

State Board of Education holds meet, reorganizes

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio State Board of Education had its first meeting of the year Monday and elected John Meckstroth, a Cincinnati attorney, its new president.

William Cossler, vice president of the Youngstown Building Material and Fuel Co., was chosen vice president.

Meckstroth has served on the board since 1965, when he was appointed to fill a vacancy. He then won re-election to his first full term.

Because of a new ruling creating staggered, six-year terms, the 23 members—all elected last November—had to draw lots on the number of years they would serve.

Six-year terms will be served by William Baker of Madison, Wallace Blake of Zanesville, Roy McKinley of Coshocton, David Rittenhouse of Toledo, Anthony Russo of Mayfield Heights, Cecil Sims of Piqua, Robert Williams of Xenia and Martha Wise of Elyria.

Serving four-year terms are Cossler, Thaddeus Garrett Jr. of Akron, Susan George of Canton, William Judd of Cincinnati, Mildred Madison of Cleveland, Wayne Shaffer of Bryan, Frances Voke of Columbus and Paul Walker of Bexley.

Those who drew the two-year terms are Everett Jung M.D. of Hamilton, Robert Lyons Sr. of Dayton, Meckstroth, Ward Miller of Portsmouth, Gene Norris of Berea, Thomas Russo of Maple Heights and Robert Walker of Adena.

The board adopted an interim report on special education that will be forwarded to the Ohio General Assembly. The 109th General Assembly enacted legislation mandating the board approve a final plan for education and habilitation of Ohio's handicapped children by July 1.

A new Neil A. Armstrong Joint Vocational School District was established by the board and includes the Wapakoneta City Schools in Auglaize County plus the Elida, Bath and Shawnee Local Schools in Allen County.

The board also approved two requests from school districts to issue bonds for construction of classroom facilities. The Western Local School District in Pike County was allowed a $190,000 issue and the Sheffield-Sheffield Lake City Schools in Lorain County were allowed $950,000.

Offer office for UMW

FARMINGTON, W.Va. (AP) — A group of businessmen has offered to construct a building to house the United Mine Workers headquarters in the Farmington area, which has been shaken twice this century by major mine disasters.

A spokesman for the Marion County group, headed by businessman John Manchin, said relocating union headquarters from Washington to Farmington would be "a real move back to the coalfields for the UMW."

UMW President Arnold Miller has said a union-wide convention this year will determine the site for the central offices, which he said should be moved to the coalfields.

More than 300 miners perished in an explosion at nearby Monongah in 1908, and 78 were entombed at Consolidation Coal Co.'s No. 9 mine here in 1968 following explosions and a fire.

10 horses killed

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Ten horses valued at about $70,000 were killed in a fire that swept through a private stable near an old race track in suburban North Randall Monday.

Lee Epley, the owner of the stable, said he was roused by another resident of his nearby home but that by the time he reached the barn the fire was too fierce to reach the horses.

Before You Buy Carpeting At A Supposedly Great Discount Better Check It Out! Some Of The Things You Might Want To Check Are:

1. The quality of the carpeting. Is it first quality goods or a second or irregular which may not give you the wear of service you want from an investment in floor covering.

2. The reliability of the firm from which you make your purchase. Do they stand behind each purchase? Do they do their own installation or is it 'farmed' out to be installed by someone other than a representative of their store? Can the company point with pride to many years of experience and many satisfied customers?

3. Some times when a price is quoted it is only the cost of the carpeting. It does not include the price of padding or installation. . .when these costs are added to the 'bargain' price of the carpet alone many times there are no savings to you at all.

4. To make certain, you have the best carpet value. . .after you have your 'price', check with other stores on the same quality of carpet. . .if it is a brand name, this is easy to do. . .if it is an off brand, you'll have to check the fiber content and other information which can be found on the back of the sample to get a true comparison.

Here at Matson's, floor covering is our only business, it is not a sideline. . .all our work is fully guaranteed, backed by over 30 years in the floor covering business. We carry a complete selection of fine quality, famous brand name carpet to select from. We'll give you a FREE ESTIMATE on your carpeting project. . .and we invite comparison!

Solitary Vinton County doctor at odds with patients

By HENRY HEILBRUNN
Associated Press Writer

MCARTHUR, Ohio (AP) — A gas station attendant, like many a McArthur resident, griped about Dr. Altaf Hussain, the only doctor in Vinton County.

"He keeps office hours and won't see anybody other than those," he said.

Across the street, a man struggled to express how he felt about the 40-year-old Pakistani physician. "You'll understand what people think of him after you talk to him," he finally said. "You'll see. He's so different."

Dr. Hussain crisply countered: "I'm a modern doctor. I want to practice modern medicine."

Old and new, custom and change, the old-fashioned general practitioner and the brisk new breed, who moves patients through his office like big city doctors.

For a year now conflict has boiled in this hill county on the fringe of Appalachia, ever since a citizen search committee found Dr. Hussain in a miners' clinic in Washington County, Pa., in November, 1972.

The nervous question was: Will Dr. Hussain remain in Vinton County or will he leave the county's 9,424 residents without a doctor to call their own?

In the last half-century, 12 doctors have come to Vinton County, lingered awhile and then quit. Dr. Richard Bullock was the latest.

For 23 years he practiced medicine in rural Vinton County, the last dozen years as the only doctor in the county. Day after day he saw endless streams of patients, some of whom brought brown bag lunches for morning appointments. They might not be examined until 2 a.m. the next morning. Dr. Bullock sometimes slept what was left of a night in his office.

The routine broke his home and made him what local residents called "moody." Eventually it drove him out of McArthur, and left Vinton County without a doctor for nine months.

Dr. Hussain broke that routine. He keeps 9-to-noon hours in his downtown McArthur office. He sees patients briskly in a green examination room, asks brief, staccato questions, writes in a manila file folder and then rapidly dispenses prescriptions.

"I met him three times and he still doesn't remember my name," said the gas station attendant. "He won't take patients when they come in. He's never there when people need him."

Dr. Hussain said: "It's very difficult to get a general practitioner in a rural area. They have to do something for it."

The something appeared in Dr. Hussain's mind to be paying bills on time, perhaps appointing him county health commissioner and being loyal.

Dr. Hussain said he would avoid seeing any patient outside office hours — if he went 30 miles to an Athens hospital or clinic, frequented a chiropractor who moved shop three days a week to McArthur after Hussain's arrival, or saw another physician for a diagnosis.

In conservative Vinton County this attitude has bred hostility amont the hill folk.

"For 20 deliveries," said Dr. Hussain, "I have been paid for only two. Now I make them pay in advance."

He said welfare medical payments were six months behind.

He's getting some backing from the local drug store. A sign on its cash register read: "We take no new accounts. Emergency prescriptions for less than $5 payable within 10 days."

Dr. Hussain has muted his criticisms, particularly his earlier charges of racial bias. "Patients don't come because I'm a foreigner," he used to say. "Some people tried to run me out of town, but I fought back. I'm staying."

One newspaper quoted him as saying, "The people here are the funniest I've ever seen. There is always all this smalltown talk. They're very mean, very conservative."

"That's just not true," said a prominent McArthur woman. "He was accepted with open arms. When he first came here he had more patients than he could handle.

"Why would we want to run our only doctor out of town?" she asked. "I think Dr. Hussain's problem is he just likes to talk."

Things may be looking up. "It's difficult for any foreigner to come into an old established community and be accepted," said the chiropractor, Dr. Herman Shuttleworth. "These people have not been exposed to his kind of big city methods. They seem to accept him a lot better now."

Dr. Hussain said: "They should appreciate my sacrifice. I left a well-paid job — the highest on the staff with just a little paper work — to come here."

His wife, dressed smartly in a lavender, purple and red pants suit in geometric design, added: "People should realize they need a doctor here. They should accept that we are different as we accept their difference."

During the year-long controversy, Dr. Hussain's patients dropped to 10 to 25 a day, but in recent weeks the number has been growing.

One reason may be his competence. Dr. Arnold Lee, the local dentist and a member of the search committee, said, "It wasn't a doctor or not. Hussain has a good education and experience."

Hussain holds degrees from King Edwards Medical College of Lahore, Pakistan, with postgraduate work in surgery in London, and internships in Chicago and Milwaukee. He settled his wife and three children in the United States about 18 months ago.

Dr. Shuttleworth said, "He has the ability to diagnose from a physical examination, which is what a small community needs that's not accessible to modern facilities." Still the basic question isn't resolved. Dr. Hussain lives and practices in McArthur, but he hangs his only shingle in Nelsonville in neighboring Athens County. McArthur patients have to know Dr. Hussain's office is in the dentist's building, because there is no sign outside.

"I'm watching my Nelsonville practice very carefully," said Dr. Hussain, who spends his afternoons there. But, he said his transplant in Ohio is permanent enough that he bought land in the north part of Vinton County on which to build a home.

Makes furniture with metal grills

PARIS (AP) — Some people are always in a hurry. Now they can furnish their apartment in an hour with a new erector set for grownups.

Avant-garde couturier Jacques Esterel has just turned "interior designer," if you can call it that. The force behind the furniture is " do it yourself."

His kingsize construction set will be easily identified by anyone who has ever bought a box of cornflakes. It's made of the same thing as supermarket carts.

With just over a cubic yard of the grills, you can turn out enough furniture to fill a 20-foot-square room. A 21-square-inch grill will cost about $8, and it takes four of them to construct a table. Holding things together are steel tubes at $3 each.

But a chair or table is child's play when faced with the infinite possibilities of a steel rack. With a sheet of gray plastic to breach occasional gaps, the creative adult can pull together a folding screen, a sofa, decorative wallhangings, a library of bookshelves or a playpen.

In contrast, the pragmatic will think of birdcages, towel racks and something to broil a stead on. You can also install Esterel's new furniture in the window — to keep burglars out or the absent-minded in.

"I'm all it takes not to be a couturier. I'm an engineer and the father of a family," says Esterel.

His new "at home" couture is engineered too. Instead of beginning with a dress and presenting "do it yourself" seamstresses with the pattern, he is now busy making patterns and seeing what they shape out as.

Psyching a 7-Year-Old

The psychologist at my son's school suggested that we have some elaborate tests done.

What can be learned about the behavior of a 7-year-old child from these tests?

Mr. and Mrs. T. E., Ill.

Dear Mr. and Mrs. E.:

I am sure that the pyschologist would not have suggested psychological testing unless your son showed evidence of emotional problems.

A teacher is in an excellent position to observe a child in his relationship with others in his class. His mental prowess and his emotional balance are evaluated by a discerning teacher.

Poor attention span, irritability, unusual aggressive behavior, a too-shy, withdrawn attitude may all be apparent at school, but not as readily recognized in the home environment.

Some parents react with hostility if a teacher or psychologist suggests the need for further study. These same parents would not hesitate to follow the instructions of a doctor if any physical symptom presented itself.

Other parents take the attitude that only time alone is necessary to handle their child's emotional problems. But time should not be depended on to solve a problem that demands immediacy.

A great many important conclusions can be arrived at by the many psychometric' studies now available. Interpretation of these tests by highly trained observers may offer a single clue to a child's behavior pattern.

With proper direction, and the coordinated effort of the psychologist, the educator, and the parents, a child can reap many benefits with early and intensive psychological studies.

By all means, follow the suggestion of the school psychologist. It is an excellent testimonial to the school and educationsl system when teachers have the insight to understand the emotional structure of their pupils.

Is a painful spur on the heel a form of arthritis?

Miss A. B., Vt.

Dear Miss B.:

Spurs are deposits of calcium in the muscles and the tendons attached to the heels. They can be exceedingly painful, and interfere with walking activity. Sometimes they can be protected with sponge rubber to avoid further injury and further pain.

In many cases, surgery is a simple and effective method of treatment.

Spurs are not generally considered to be a form of arthritis.

Sometimes my doctor uses water and at other times he uses a pick to take wax out of my ears.

Which method is better?

Mr. L. L., Ore.

Dear Mr. L.:

When wax is firm, hard, and impacted, a special blunt instrument is used to remove it.

Soft wax can be more easily removed by syringing.

Both methods are effective. People who tend to accumulate wax should have it removed at regular frequent intervals rather than wait until it is painful or impacted.

Opening lead - king of clubs.

Let's assume you're in four spades and West starts out with the K-A of clubs, East playing the 8-2 to show a doubleton. When West continues with the jack, you ruff in dummy with the nine, which East overruffs with the jack. Having lost three tricks, you are obliged — in the fullness of time — to try the heart finesse. When this fails, you finish down one.

If you are of an inquisitive nature and start to wonder whether or not the hand could have been made, you can quickly discover that you could have — and should have — made the hand.

It all goes back to trick three, when West led the jack of clubs and you ruffed high in dummy and got overruffed by East. Instead of trumping the third round of clubs in dummy, hoping that East would be unable to overtrump, it would have been wiser to discard a heart from dummy.

For practical purposes, this would have insured the contract. Whatever West played next, you would draw trumps as rapidly as possible, cash the A-K of diamonds and A-K of hearts, then cash the queen of diamonds and discard dummy's last heart, thus causing the heart loser to disappear.

It may seem strange that the best way of playing the hand is to make no effort whatever to win the third round of clubs — when there is obviously a chance of winning the trick by ruffing high in dummy.

But that is clearly the right thing to do under the circumstances, for, by doing so, you eliminate all chance of losing a heart trick later on. The long-term view of winning the contract takes precedence over the short-term view of winning the trick.

Hearty sneeze brings back woman's hearing

COVENTRY, England (AP) — A 22-year-old worker in an auto factory here says a sneeze has ended a lifetime of almost total silence.

"I can hear, I can hear," Jean Haynes shouted after the loud sneeze.

Miss Haynes has been virtually deaf since birth. Recently, she found she was allergic to the plastic foam used in the plant department where she worked. She started sneezing and couldn't stop — once going for six hours.

Miss Haynes was transferred to another department, but she gave one final sneeze Saturday. Doctors believe the head-jerking sneezes unblocked a tube connecting her middle ear and nose.

There's just one problem. Miss Haynes said she has trouble sleeping. Too much noise.

Meet Pinnochio! . . .

A SALUTE FROM THE STAR — The star of Danny Deeds, D & M Production marionette show, "Pinnochio," hams it up for the cameraman a few minutes before he made his grand entrance before an appreciative crowd of several hundred children and adults at Miami Trace High School. Pinnochio's father, the toymaker and his dog CoCo are at the left.

"I'M A REAL BOY" — Pinnochio returns home to his father as a real boy in the final scene in the show, after somehow escaping the great carnivorous catfish. All the toys in his father's workshop come to life to celebrate his return.

BEHIND THE STAGE — Puppeteers check their strings for tangles and worn spots in last-minute preparations before the "Pinnochio" puppet show presented Monday at MTHS. The 102 custom-made marionettes used in the show were handled by 10 puppeteers.

New Holland Council approves 1973 funds

NEW HOLLAND — This village has now received a total of $2,571 in two payments from the federal government's revenue sharing program.

Mrs. Lincoln Schwart, clerk, reported to Council Monday night that the second payment of $1,259 has arrived and that the first payment amounted to $1,213. The money was earmarked for police protection.

Council also approved the 1973 appropriation budget of approximately $53,000. It will not go to the Pickaway County Board of Commissioners for its revision, approval or rejection.

At the start of the meeting, Council reorganized by re-electing Clarence Brown as president pro tem. Wilbur Frazier, the mayor, indicated no changes will be made in committee assignments.

A REQUEST by the Ohio Bell Telephone Co. to lay its cables underground along Arnold Road in the village from the corporation at the cemetery was granted.

Amos DeWitt's bid of $101.50 for the village's dump truck was rejected as being too low.

Council agreed to clamp down on the use of the village landfill for dumping refuse by non-residents and, because it has filled up so rapidly, approved plans for leveling it this week.

Council also agreed to pay $10 a month to keep the police cruiser in a garage owned by Margaret Noble and discussed at length vandalism in the village, especially that involving the trash collection containers on the streets.

Action on a request by Eddie Strausbaugh and Charles Root to make a section of School Street a one-way thoroughfare was postponed because, it was pointed out, the village has no police officers to enforce such an ordinance.

Board studies appropriations

Although they spent most of the day working on it, the Fayette County Commmissioners were unable to finish the county's 1973 appropriation measure Monday.

Commissioners Robert Mace, J. Herbert Perrill and Ray Warner met at 10 a.m. Tuesday to complete the process of consideration and trimming of appropriations requests from various county offices.

The Board of Commissioners reorganized for the coming year Monday, naming Mace chairman and Perrill vice chairman.

Council reorganizes Wednesday

Four ordinances and two resolutions will be on the agenda when City Council meets at 7 p.m. Wednesday in a session recessed from Dec. 27.

First item of business will be the annual reorganization ceremonies in which a 1973 chairman and vice chairman will be selected. The positions are now held by Hugh (Bud) Patton and Billie Wilson respectively.

City Solicitor James A. Kiger will preside over the election.

ORDINANCES awaiting consideration would:

(1) Vacate a portion of an alley in the Companys' Addition near the Marting Manufacturing Co.;

(2) Authorize the city manager to contract with the Hartley Oil Co. for furnishing bulk gasoline to the city during 1973;

(3) Authorize the city manager to contract with the Sheridan Insurance Agency for fleet coverage; and

All four ordinances carry emergency tags.

THE TWO resolutions would (1) authorize the city manager to enter into an agreement with Fayette County for keeping prisoners and (2) authorize the city manager to enter into mutual aid fire protection contracts.

Also on the agenda are the city manager's report, the customary period for voters and taxpayers to address Council and suggestions by individual councilmen.

Cattle feeders hear Ed Johnson

Ed Johnson, executive secretary of the Ohio Cattlemen's Association was the guest speaker for the Fayette County Cattle Feeders Association annual meeting held Monday night. Attendance, which is normally near 250 - 275 cattle feeders, was down to 204 due to late corn harvest and the excellent harvest weather which prevailed Monday.

Johnson spoke briefly on the highlights of the annual meeting of the Ohio Cattlemen's Association last Week in Columbus. He said one of the successful activities was a news conference held to relate the cattlemen's story to the housewife who buys the finished product.

Johnson spoke of a bright picture for 1973 for the cattle industry with more beef being consumed. He told the cattle feeders that "1973 looks like an excellent year to be in the cattle feeding business."

In promoting the Ohio Cattlemen's Association, Johnson told the cattlemen present that it is their organization and that they should give it their full support through their membership. He left the cattlemen with a challenge to work together to build the cattle industry in the future.

Robert Haigler, a past president of the Ohio association, was master of ceremonies and introduced Johnson.

At the conclusion of the banquet, Haigler presented former county Extension Service Agent Phil Grover a plaque in appreciation of 17 years of service to the association.

During the business session John Bryant, past president of the Fayette County association, presented a slate of candidates for directors of the association. Directors elected, one per township to serve two-year terms are: Concord, Ray Jinks; John Bryant; Jasper, Rollo Gray; Jefferson, Ray Bentley; Madison, Norman Schiering; Marion, Alvin Writsel; Paint, Milbourne Barney; Perry, Edward McClure; Union, John Fetters; Wayne, Wayne Forsythe.

Dr. Ned Abbott, president of the county association, was in charge of overall banquet arrangements.

Both sides remain grim

No indication of success in Viet talks

PARIS (AP) — Henry A. Kissinger conferred with Le Duc Tho for six hours today in the second session of their Vietnam peace talks as Hanoi declared in a broadcast that "there has not been any sign showing that the negotiations will reach any results."

President Nixon's national security adviser was the host of the meeting in an American-owned villa in suburban St. Nom la Breteche. As at Monday's meeting on Communist ground, there was no public handshaking between the two sides, reflecting the apparent chilly atmosphere of the talks following the massive American bombing raids on North Vietnam.

But Tho and his advisers emerged smiling from the villa at the end of the meeting, in marked contrast with their grim expressions when the meeting began. Kissinger also directed a wan smile toward waiting newsmen and photographers when he left the villa a few minutes later.

Both sides maintained their mutually agreed news blackout over the subjects under discussion.

The unfriendly atmosphere which surrounded Monday's meeting continued today. None of the North Vietnamese were outside to greet Kissinger on his arrival Monday, so none of the Americans were visible when Tho and his staff arrived today. However, the door was opened from the inside as the North Vietnamese reached it, while on Monday Kissinger had to open the door to the Communist villa himself.

As usual, neither side said anything about what went on in Monday's 4½-hour session. But Kissinger left the meeting without his usual smile, and there was was no public exchange of cordial farewells like those during the last round of negotiations in December.

The North Vietnamese delegation in Paris talks said privately that the public displays of friendliness were dropped because of President Nixon's bombing campaign against Hanoi and Haiphong.

Nhan Dan, the official newspaper of the North Vietnamese Communist party, said today that Hanoi's representatives had returned to the negotiations "with the seriousness and good will to bring about a correct solution to the Vietnam problem."

But Nhan Dan made clear that Hanoi was still demanding the U.S. sign the draft peace agreement Kissinger and Tho worked out in October. "If the American aggressors abandon their colonialist viewpoint, the peace agreement reached Oct. 20, 1972, can be signed," it said.

President opens up on MIGs

SAIGON (AP) — President Nixon has authorized U.S. fighter escorts to attack North Vietnamese MIGs or surface-to-air missile sites above the 20th parallel if they threaten American B52s below the northern limit Nixon has placed on the bombing of North Vietnam, reliable sources reported today.

The U.S. Command announced today that an Air Force F4 Phantom shot down a MIG21 along the 20th parallel Sunday when it threatened a flight of B52s.

The Command said that the MIG was downed "northwest of Thanh Hoa," which is only 10 miles below the 20th parallel, and spokesman refused to say just how far northwest of the city. This was interpreted as a tacit acknowledgment that the dogfight extended above the parallel.

U.S. sources outside the Command indicated today that Hanoi Radio was not lying when it reported last week that U.S. fighters escorting reconnaissance planes attacked antiaircraft defenses in Hoa Binh Province south of Hanoi. The U.S. Command denied at the time that American planes had bombed pre-selected targets above the 20th parallel, but it refused to comment on reconnaissance operations and what action fighter escorts might have taken.

Thirty-nine B52s dropped about 1,100 tons of bombs in the North Vietnamese panhandle during the 24 hours ending at 8 a.m. today, U.S. sources said.

During the same period, the Command said, U.S. fighterbombers made 128 strikes in the panhandle, destroying supply trucks and setting fuel depots afire.

Hanoi claimed that two B52s were downed Monday and today below the 20th parallel, and an said unmanned reconnaissance plane was shot down north of Hanoi on Monday, but the U.S. Command said it had no plane losses to report.

In South Vietnam, nearly 50 B52s dropped more than 1,200 tons of explosives on troop concentrations in a staging area that North Vietnamese forces used for attacks in the tri-border region of the central highlands, where the frontiers of South Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia meet.

It was the second day of heavy raids in the region between Highway 14 and the border, 10 to 20 miles northwest of Kontum. This indicated a new North Vietnamese buildup, perhaps in preparation for an attack on Kontum.

Premier Pham Van Dong of North Vietnam ordered new austerity measures and heightened military alerts for his country as Hanoi again accused President Nixon of threatening to resume the bombing of Hanoi and Haiphong.

The U.S. Command again refused to comment on Hanoi Radio statements that American planes were flying reconnaissance over Hanoi and Haiphong in preparation for resumption of the bombing there should the current round of Paris peace talks fail.

Watergate trial avoids top names

WASHINGTON (AP) — The trial of the seven men charged in connection with the break-in and alleged bugging of Democratic national headquarters will reach into the Nixon administration, but not to the top levels.

Seven current or former White House staffers or members of President Nixon's reelection effort were named Monday as anticipated witnesses as the trial opened in U.S. District Court.

Asst. U.S. Atty. Earl J. Silbert, heading the prosecution team, read a list of 60 witnesses the government expects to call, including four Nixon campaign officials, two White House staffers and a former White House secretary.

The defendants include a former White House consultant, a former official of the Committee for the Re-election of the President and another man who worked in both places.

An eight-count indictment charges them variously with burglary, conspiracy, interception of oral and wire communications and unlawful possession of intercepting devices.

Five of the men were captured at gunpoint early last June 17 inside the Democratic offices in the Watergate office - apartment complex overlooking the Potomac River.

The two others were added in the federal indictment which said the seven conspired from May 1 to the day of the breakin to illegally gain information from the headquarters. Democrats have charged that political espionage was behind the break-in but the White House steadfastly has denied any connection.

Among the prosecution witnesses slated to be called are Jeb Magruder, a top lieutenant in the White House communications office who organized and initially headed the Nixon campaign committee.

Others include Hugh W. Sloan Jr., former treasurer of the Finance Committee to Re-elect the President; Robert C. Odle Jr., personnel chief for the campaign committee, and Herbert R. Porter, who ran the surrogate-speaker program for the Nixon campaign.

Arrest woman with loaded submachine gun

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — A 37-year-old Cleveland woman has been charged with arson, malicious destruction of property and possession of an unlawful weapon after police said they arrested her in an east side home with a loaded submachine gun.

Police said Beatrice Buchanan entered a nearby home, went upstairs and set the building on fire. Then she fled from the home, went next door and threatened a 70-year-old neighbor, police said.

Police said the incident had apparently stemmed from an argument with the owner of the first home.

Columbus man killed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Kirk E. Williams, 20, of Columbus, was killed Monday night when a car collided with his stalled foreign-made auto here, police said.

How many? That's the question

Police unable to find New Orleans sniper!

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Police Supt. Clarence Giarrusso says a sniper involved in the slayings of six persons slipped through a 200-man cordon from his hotel rooftop perch Monday either through "police negligence" or because he was super smart.

Giarrusso said Monday night he was convinced more than one sniper was responsible for killing the six and injuring 17 others in a two-day battle. But when pressed by newsmen, Giarrusso admitted there could have been just one sniper — the man killed by police gunfire Sunday night.

A floor-to-floor search of the 18-story Down Town Howard Johnson's hotel was made by 100 officers Monday night. They found no one and all but about a dozen officers left the scene.

The central business district, which was cordoned off by police Monday, is to be opened to normal activity today, Mayor Moon Landrieu said.

As the floor-by-floor search of the hotel began, Giarrusso said, "If they don't turn up anyone ... then he got away."

How could he have filtered to freedom through the scores of officers surrounding the hotel?

"There's a gamut of possibilities ranging from police negligence to a superbrain sniper," Giarrusso replied.

The theory of two or more snipers was based on "some" evidence, Giarrusso said, stressing that after a sniper was killed on the rooftop Sunday night, there were reports of gunfire coming from the roof and three officers were slightly wounded.

However, the superintendent admitted the possibility that the three were wounded by gunfire from fellow officers stationed in surrounding buildings.

He said he had other evidence, but would not elaborate.

A sharpshooter in an armor-plated Marine helicopter killed the sniper whose body lay on the rooftop all night and most of the day Monday.

The body was removed Monday evening and fingerprinted. Giarrusso said there was a tentative identification, but "I'm not going to announce anything tentative. When we are positive, I'll tell you."

Ethics, tax sharing bills set for General Assembly

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The 110th General Assembly was to reconvene for its second week today and await two major pieces of legislation from Gov. John Gilligan.

Gilligan's aides said both an ethics bill and a bill to appropriate $72 million in federal revenue sharing funds would be offered during the week.

The ethics bill—a new version of one Gilligan offered in the 109th—would call for full financial disclosure of elected public officials ranging from governor to township trustee.

Any public employe making more than $15,000-a-year will be required to make similar disclosures. A similar bill died following two hearings last year.

With Democrats controlling the House 58-41, the Gilligan administration hopes to see the bill move. Republicans have only a one-vote edge, 17-to-16, in the Senate, where several GOP senators are known to favor ethics legislation.

Republicans offered their own version of the revenue sharing bill in the closing weeks of the 109th, but Republicans backed off shoving it through when Gilligan said he would veto it.

Gilligan's version will allocate the funds for capital improvements.

Although House Speaker A. G. Lancione, D-99 Bellaire, wants to get the legislative machinery working early, Minority Leader Charles Kurfess, R-83 Perrysburg, had not made House Republican committee assignments as of Monday.

In related developments, Rep. John Galbraith, R-69 Maumee, said he hopes to introduce during the week a bill to repeal Ohio's so-called "blue laws" prohibiting certain sales on Sunday.

The laws, some of them in effect since 1788 when Ohio still was part of the Northwest Territory, have never been uniformly enforced.

Galbraith, who tried unsuccessfully to repeal the laws three years ago, said he will renew the effort because "they are unenforceable, and are being totally ignored all around the state, particularly around Christmas time when all the stores remain open.

Rep. Donna Pope, R-12 Parma, said Monday she plans to introduce two bills this week making adjustments in Ohio's year-old income tax.

One would permit a husband and wife to file state returns separately even if they file a joint federal return, and another to correct "an error" in the law which allowed some wage earners making between $10,000 and $15,000 to enjoy an unintended break of $7 on their 1972 tax bills.

Mrs. Pope said she also plans to offer a proposed constitutional amendment to lift the $3,000 exemption ceiling under which exemptions of $500 for each dependent may only be claimed up to that amount.

Ohio ombudsman for consumers set

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Gov. John J. Gilligan today announced the hiring of Adelle Mitchell of Columbus as a $15,787-a-year ombudsman for the Ohio Environmental Protection Agency.

Gilligan said she would handle citizen complaints of environmental problems and "loosening potential bottlenecks in EPA's regulatory functions.

Lukens account filed late; could kill plans for 1974

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — State Sen. Donald E. "Buzz" Lukens did not file his expense account for the November election on time and cannot be a political candidate for five years, Secretary of State Ted W. Brown said today.

Brown said the Butler County Board of Elections did not receive Lukens' statement until Jan. 3. It was due Dec. 22, 45 days after the election.

Lukens has for several weeks been saying he would be a Republican candidate for governor in 1974.

Brown said he was informed of the late filing this morning and told State GOP Chairman John S. Andrews of the development.

Lukens, 41, told The Associated Press the statement — listing no receipts and no expenses — was the second one he filed. He said the board did not receive the first.

"I am sure this thing can be cleared up," he said. "I sent one and the board called me before the deadline and told me I hadn't filed. I told them I had mailed one and they said, 'Mail another.' I did. I don't know what happened."

Lukens was irked at Brown because he had talked to Andrews and a newsman prior to informing Lukens. "I think it was very discourteous," he said. "He got publicity at my expense."

Lukens, a former congressman, was appointed to the state senate two years ago after a surprising second-place showing in a three-man race for governor.

The Middletown Republican won the Fourth District seat in his own right Nov. 7. Lukens is a former national president of the Young Republicans.

Brown said Ohio law provides only that an expense statement be filed within 45 days. Although his office and the courts often recognize later statements postmarked prior to the deadline, he said the law doesn't go into that area.

Lukens' statement was 11 days late. Brown said Lukens would have to prove by sworn statements any contention that it was lost in the postal system.

A candidate who does not file on time can hold the seat he was elected to but cannot run for any political office for five years, Brown said. That is the only penalty.

Wholesale farm price rise largest in past 26 years

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wholesale farm prices posted the biggest monthly increase in 26 years last month with a climb of 6.8 per cent, the government reported today.

The report, by the Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics, blamed weather damage to crops as the main reason for the big increase.

The sharp climb in food prices boosted the government's over-all wholesale price index 1.8 per cent in December, the largest in 22 years. The increase was slightly less, 1.6 per cent, on a seasonally adjusted basis.

Prices of a broad range of industrial raw materials rose three-tenths of 1 per cent while wholesale consumer finished goods ready for market at retail had climbed 1.2 per cent, the report said.

The big increase in prices of farm products, largely uncontrolled by federal price regulations, included boosts of 21.1 per cent for grains, 16.9 per cent for eggs, 13.6 per cent for hay and oil seeds, 9.4 per cent for livestock, 7.8 per cent for plant and animal fibers, eight-tenths of 1 per cent for poultry and one-tenth of 1 per cent for milk.

The only declines was 5.1 per cent for fruits and vegetables.

Grains were 44.1 per cent higher than a year ago, livestock was 22.4 per cent above last year and eggs were up 25.8 per cent over the year.

The rise in prices of farm products was the largest since March 1947 and the over-all rise in all wholesales prices was the biggest since January 1951, the bureau said.

Nixon turns 60 today

By FRANCES LEWINE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon, observing his milestone 60th birthday today, says he "hopes to do great things" in the first four years of his seventh decade.

He doesn't feel old, he says. And to keep thinking young he suggests looking to the future, not the past, and staying in contact with younger people.

Nixon granted a birthday-eve interview to two news-service reporters, provided the discussion was limited solely to his birthday reflections. He took time out from working on his inaugural address for a 25-minute talk in his Executive Office Building hideaway.

The President said he doesn't like observing birthdays annually anymore and prefers to make note of them only on the decades—"every 10 years."

He cited his 10-year milestones starting at age 20 when he was "a junior in college, majoring in history and English, going out for football—"but I never made the team."

At 30, he was in Bougainville in the South Pacific in World War II. At 40, he had just been elected vice president. At 50, he was just defeated for the governorship of California and at 60, just re-elected for a second presidential term.

Never in those decades, "least of all at 50, did I expect to be here at this time at 60," Nixon commented.

The President plans to celebrate his birthday tonight with his wife, Pat, daughters Tricia Cox and Julie Eisenhower, his long-time personal secretary, Rose Mary Woods, and close Florida friend C.G. "Bebe" Rebozo.

He said he expects his daughters and Rebozo, who recently turned 60 himself, will give him a "pretty good kidding" about passing the milestone.

Sitting back in an easy chair, Nixon began his birthday reflections with a discourse on the ideal age for politicians to launch their careers. He suggested between 25 and 40 for the House of Representatives because "it's a back-breaking physical job if you do it well" and it takes about 25 years to get the seniority needed to become a

Patman rips Nixon freeze on housing

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Sen. John J. Sparkman says he believes quick legislation will erase about two-thirds of what he terms the serious impact resulting from President Nixon's order for an 18-month freeze on subsidized housing starts.

The freeze was announced Monday by Secretary George W. Romney of the Department of Housing and Urban Development as both he and Sparkman, an Alabama Democrat, spoke at the 29th convention of the National Association of Home Builders.

Romney said a temporary holding action on new commitments for water and sewer grants, open space grants and public facility loans also has been ordered.

"The time has come to pause, to re-evaluate and seek out better ways," Romney said.

He emphasized, however, that projects already in the "pipeline" and those necessary to meet statutory or other specific commitments will be approved.

But Sparkman, Rep. Wright Patman, D-Tex., and home building officials viewed the actions as abuse by the executive branch of its power to impound appropriated funds.

Sparkman, chairman of the Senate Banking, Housing and Urban Affairs Committee, said the housing freeze will have a serious impact during the remainder of the current fiscal year.

Storm hammers Southeast; at least 5 deaths reported

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Freezing rain and icy conditions plagued the Southeast today, closing highways, toppling trees and snapping power lines and leaving thousands without heat in below-freezing temperatures.

Bitter cold remained entrenched over many sections of the nation. A new Pacific storm scattered snow from Northern California and Oregon into Nevada.

Snow flurries touched the Texas Panhandle and the central Midwest and Great Lakes Region.

The collapse of a snow-covered furniture store roof in Jacksonville, N.C., killed one person. Two elderly sisters in Red Oak, Ga., an Atlanta suburb, died in a fire triggered when an ice-loaded tree limb fell on their home.

Slick roads contributed to two traffic deaths in North Carolina. Interstate 85 in north Georgia was closed. Heavy snowfall in Tennessee and North Carolina mountain areas halted all business and travel, and ice buildups in north Georgia and southeastern Tennessee caused power failures.

The possibility of flash floods loomed for later in the week when warmer temperatures are expected to melt snow and ice accumulations.

Georgia Power Co. crews got extra help from workers in south Georgia and Alabama as they tried to overcome outages in the Atlanta area, Augusta, Athens, Rome and other northern areas. About 30 per cent of Atlanta's power customers were without electricity.

Numerous schools were closed in Arkansas because of snow and ice, and 4,000 customers of the Arkansas Power & Light Co. were without electricity in the state's southern section as ice-laden utility lines snapped or were broken by falling trees.

Plea for self-regulation of children's TV heard

WASHINGTON (AP) — The television industry has responded to a petition to prohibit all commercials on children's programs with a plea that it be allowed to continue with self-regulation.

"This is not so much a plea for gradualism but rather a plea to use the apparatus we have," Stockton Helffrich, director of the National Association of Broadcasters' code authority, told the Federal Communications Commission Monday.

"... In the current climate of change, where all of us want improvements in our society's imperfections which most stand out, there is a prevailing temptation to malign and negate that which has been laboriously built....

"The code—in my opinion, wisely—makes haste slowly.. It cannot move faster than the necessary fact-gathering and due process permit. That is a positive, really; where the establishment of new policies pertain, better right than sorry."

Helffrich told the commission he questions a suggestion that a minority of public members be added to the code review board.

That suggestion was advanced by the Rev. Edward A. Powers, general secretary of the division of Christian education of the United Church of Christ.

"The NAB code review board," he said, "should be augmented by the presence of public members to evaluate children's programming and to act as advisers to the NAB board of directors with respect to the needs of children and how they should be fulfilled."

The Rev. Mr. Powers said these members should not be named by the industry, but rather by such groups as the League of Women Voters, the National Education Association, the AFL-CIO, and Action for Children's Television—ACT.

committee chairman or speaker.

For the Senate, Nixon suggested a candidate should be between 30 and 50 because it requires more experience, and after reaching 50 a senator could get in no more than three terms before age 70. At that point, the President said, it is "a long-shot to become a chairman."

The Supreme Court is for persons about 60 because "you have to have enormous experience before you go to the court," Nixon said. He couldn't find anyone age 40 to put on the high court—"and God knows I looked"—because "they don't have the experience," he added.

Nixon would not set an ideal age for the presidency because so much depends on the needs of the nation and the times, he said. But "the presidency is a very demanding position, physically, mentally and emotionally." Unless a man has "a remarkable physique in all these respects he should not seek the presidency at an age up in the late 60s," Nixon said.

The chief executive said there were plenty of exceptions and he pointed to men in their 70s and 80s that he had known, including President Dwight D. Eisenhower, German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer, French President Charles de Gaulle and Japanese Prime Minister Shigeru Yoshida. All these men, Nixon said, "did not look back, they were not living in the past, they were living in the future."

"Never slow down the brain, never slow down the spiritual heart, then age is not going to pull you down," the President said.

Nixon said boredom, rather than burdens of office, causes breakdown in health, and added that "the presidency has many problems but boredom is the least of them."

And he also believes in keeping physically fit, disclosing that every day when he's at his mountaintop retreat at Camp David, Md., he dons a terrycloth robe and goes down for a swim in the heated outdoor pool.

He said he gave a rookie Secret Service agent quite a start by going for a swim in five-degree-below-zero weather last Sunday.

The Secret Service has been working in some new men, training them alongside veterans, the President said. When the word came over their radios that "the President's walking down to go swimming," Nixon said, the rookie agent exclaimed to his partner: "What's the matter with you? Are you trying to pull my leg?"

Brown proposes several changes in election laws

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Secretary of State Ted W. Brown proposed a number of changes today in Ohio's election laws, including statewide registration of voters and keeping polls open until 7:30 p.m.

He included his proposals in a letter to Sen. Stanley J. Aronoff, R-8 Cincinnati, chairman of the Senate Elections Committee. Brown said he will propose additional technical changes to the legislature later this year.

Ohio's top elections official noted that at present, 26 of Ohio's 88 counties do not have voter registration. "Certainly, the qualifications of those eligible to vote should be determined by the board of elections prior to the day of election and not be thrust, for decision, upon polling place officials on election day," Brown said.

He advocated extending voting hours from 6:30 to 7:30, he said, to accommodate people who have diffuculty getting to the polls in the present 12-hour voting period.

Va., .04 and a trace at Cincinnati.

Cincy Reds scout Buddy Bloebaum dies

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Edward H. "Buddy" Bloebaum, 69, a major league baseball scout for 20 years, died in Deaconness Hospital here Monday.

Bloebaum worked 15 years as a scout for the Cincinnati Reds, and was credited with signing Reds star Pete Rose, his nephew, to his first professional contract in 1960.

Bloebaum played minor league baseball with Cedar Rapids, Iowa, and Peoria, Ill., then played amateur and semipro ball in the Cincinnati-Dayton-Middletown area of Ohio for 20 years.

He worked for 35 years as an inspector for the National Cash Register Co., which is headquartered in Dayton. Bloebaum had been ill for about two years.

Survivors include the widow, Lucille, and one son.

Funeral services were scheduled Thursday morning at Vitt and Stermer Funeral Home with burial at St. Joseph Cemetery in suburban Price Hill.

Accord reached for propane gas

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Arrangements were made Monday with a Canadian firm to supply 700,000 gallons of propane gas to Ohio's farmers, the Public Utilities Commission said.

Commission Chairman Henry Eckhart said gas from HydraGas of Sarnia, Ont., will go mostly to farmers in northwestern Ohio where it is needed for drying corn and soybeans.

State officials say another 20 million gallons is needed to dry the dampened crops.

An attempt to have the gas shipped in by barge from Texas so far has not succeeded.

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Mass of the Resurrection will be celebrated here Thursday for H. Jack Schrage, executive secretary of the Ohio Thoroughbred Breeders and Owners Association.

The Cincinnati area resident, who was 63, died Monday at Providence Hospital. He had been hospitalized since Saturday after suffering a stroke.

Schrage also was business manager of the Ohio Thoroughbred Magazine, the official publication of the breeders and owners association.

Stock prices off slightly

NEW YORK (AP) — Prices wobbled a little lower in today's stock market in active trading.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down 2.56 to 1045.30, and declining issues on the New York Stock Exchange had about a 7-to-5 advantage over gainers.

Traders said a possible factor in the market was a Labor Department report that wholesale prices soared in December at an annual rate of 19.2 per cent, the biggest rise in 21 years.

The Big Board's most-active issue was Fannie Mae, down 1⅛ to 17¾, with a block of 60,000 shares selling at 18. Analysts blamed the drop on a government announcement of a housing freeze.

After a delayed opening on the American Stock Exchange, Houston Oil & Mineral sold at 33, up 3⅛. The company reported Monday the discovery of a "significant" gas find in Galveston Bay, Texas.

Aussies end U.S. boycott

SYDNEY (AP) — The two-week-old boycott protesting the American bombing of North Vietnam was called off today by the Australian Maritime Union. Two other unions involved in the boycott are expected to follow suit.

Maritime Union Secretary Elliott V. Elliott said the boycott was stopped at the request of the Australian Council of Trade Unions, but that members had the right to resume it. He said the ban was worthwhile because of the worldwide reaction it provoked.

One of the results was a retaliatory boycott of Australian ships by longshoremen on the U.S. East Coast. Nine Australian ships carrying meat and wool have been tied up. Only two American ships were affected by the Australian boycott.

Relations between the Australian and U.S. governments also were strained by the union protest as well as by criticism of President Nixon by three Cabinet ministers.

Moorer to brief Congress on resumption of bombing

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon sends its top military strategist to Capitol Hill today to report to Congress on the massive December bombing of North Vietnam's industrial heartland.

Adm. Thomas H. Moorer, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, planned to testify at separate, closed sessions of the House Appropriations and Armed Services committees.

Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird told congressmen Monday that Moorer would provide "complete information" on the stepped-up bombing of targets around Hanoi and Haiphong, which ran from Dec. 18 to Dec. 30.

President Nixon ordered the bombing halted after the United States and North Vietnam agreed to resume the secret Paris peace talks. The talks between White House adviser Henry Kissinger and Hanoi's Le Duc Tho resumed Monday.

Many congressmen have called for a complete report on the bombing and the status of the Paris negotiations when the decision was made to resume it. Moorer's report marks the first response to such calls.

Laird fended off questions on the bombing at an open meeting of the Armed Services Committee Monday, saying he did not want to jeopardize the peace negotiations.

"Full information on the bombing effort will be released at the appropriate time," Laird told the committee. "Meanwhile we'll be glad to give it to you in executive session."

The outgoing secretary of defense said the Vietnamization program has been so successful that the South Vietnamese "can handle their own in-country, security."

But, he said, Nixon always has said the United States will maintain a military presence in South Vietnam until American prisoners of war are released and Americans missing in action are accounted for.

Rep. Otis G. Pike, D-N.Y., said he had assumed the POW issue had been settled after Kissinger's statements that "peace is at hand" and that a peace agreement was 99 per cent complete.

Why then, Pike inquired, was it necessary to use B52 bombers in the stepped-up bombing since the South Vietnamese will not have such planes to operate themselves after the United States withdraws?

Laird replied: "The assumptions you make on the negotiating track are not correct, regarding prisoners of war and missing in action."

5-state brownout threatened

FAIRMONT, W.Va. (AP) — One million Monongahela Power Co. customers hung under the threat of a massive five-state brownout today as company workmen strove to repair a leaking generating station boiler.

A Monongahela spokesman Monday night urged electric consumers in north-central West Virginia, western Pennsylvania, western Maryland, sections of Virginia and eastern Ohio to use only necessary appliances and lights as the firm dealt with temporary loss of a large bloc of power generation.

Repairs were to be completed sometime today to the boiler at the 550,000-kilowatt generator at the company's Fort Martin power station north of Morgantown. The boiler's shutdown Monday and lingering subfreezing temperatures combined to create the danger of a brownout or even a total blackout, the spokesman said.

He added that critical power drain periods are from 9 a.m. to noon, and from 4 p.m. until 9 p.m. daily, and asked that customers turn off unnecessary lights, delay use of clothes driers, dishwashers and irons and reduce settings on thermostats for electrically heated homes.

Monongahela itself serves West Virginia, Ohio and Virginia, and supplies power for West Penn Power Co. in Pennsylvania and Potomac Edison Co. in Maryland.

Gun-toter draws fine, suspended sentence

A Washington C. H. man arrested in a downtown bar in November after he was found to be carrying a loaded .22 caliber pistol pleaded guilty to a reduced charge in Muncipal Court Monday afternoon.

Assistant City Solicitor Dennis Ulrich had requested that the concealed weapons charge against Virgil F. West, 33, of 1025 Briar Ave., be reduced from a felony to a misdemeanor since West had no previous record. Acting Judge John Bryan granted the request, and West pleaded guilty to the lesser count.

West was fined $200 and costs and sentenced to 30 days in jail. Judge Bryan suspended the jail term for one year pending good behavior.

Police said West was arrested Nov. 17 in the H & H Bar, E. Court St., after they received a complaint of a man with a gun.

RUSSELL DAY, 78, of 307 N. North St., charged with carrying a concealed weapon and assault on a police officer, pleaded innocent to the two charges stemming from a gun-carrying incident in the Emerald Inn, 114 S. Fayette St., Saturday night.

Acting Judge Bryan set bond at $5,000.

Day, according to police, became violent at police headquarters while being searched by officers following his arrest on a concealed weapons charge and struck Police Capt. Charles Foster in the mouth, lacerating his lip and knocking a tooth loose.

Officers said Day had pulled a .38 caliber pistol from his coat as they walked into the bar and they were forced to wrestle it from his grasp.

Day was incarcerated in the city jail in lieu of bond.

FOUR OTHER persons forfeited bond when they failed to appear on various disturbance charges.

Marshall D. Ball, 29, Pompano Beach, Fla., and Frank Merritt, 49, Rt. 1, New Holland, both forfeited $50 bond on complaints of disturbing the peace by intoxication filed by police.

Both were arrested in the downtown area Friday night.

Forfeiting $50 bond on disturbing the peace charges were Charles E. Howell Jr., 24, of 317 S. North St., and Larry L. Duncan, 22, of 711 Briar Ave.

Supreme Court to review federal jail responsibility

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The suicide of a Texas youth has prompted the Supreme Court to review the government's responsibility over conditions in local jails.

On any given day, about 4,000 federal prisoners are in state and local jails waiting to be tried or sentenced.

The jails often are overcrowded and the facilities substandard, Chief Judge John R. Brown of the U.S. Circuit Court has said. Inmates routinely subject other prisoners to "varieties of subhuman treatment that no citizen of a civilized nation ... should be compelled to endure," Brown wrote last July.

The judge and two others, John Minor Wisdom and Irving L. Goldberg, wanted their court to reconsider its ruling that the parents of the youth, Reagan E. Logue of Corpus Christi, were not entitled to damages for his death.

The 18-year-old boy faced federal trial on charges of conspiring to smuggle 229 pounds of marijuana into the United States when he was placed in the Nueces County jail.

Doctors, mindful of a suicide attempt and a diagnosis that the youth was acutely psychotic, had recommended he be kept in a hospital, the appeal said.

One day young Logue removed the long bandage from his arm and hanged himself.

The parents are seeking the $5,000 in damages awarded in 1971 by U.S. Dist. Court Judge Owen D. Cox of Corpus Christi but reversed by the Circuit Court.

The appeal tests whether the U.S. government is exempt from liability under federal law. But, it also says, there is a deeper, fundamentally moral issue at stake: "the conditions to which the federal government subjects its prisoners when it turns them over to local jails."

The Justice Department opposed the review.

The case will be argued before the court in March or April with a final decision due before the end of June.

In another action Monday the justices cut down a major women's-rights case.

Sandusky may draw 3 medics

FREMONT, Ohio (AP) — The administrator of Sandusky County Memorial Hospital said he has received five responses from doctors interested in $75,000 worth of grants to attract two pediatricians and a general practioner to the area.

John Gettman said the responses came from two pediatricians and three generalists, but said no decision has been made on who will receive the individual $25,000 grants.

Gettman said the offering of the grants was made last month because the hospital is "in a tight situation where we had to make bold moves."

Sandusky County, with 65,000 residents, has no pediatrician and a lack of general practioners.

He said the reaction of the community to the grants has been "basically favorable," but that the medical profession has made no response, "neither negative or affirmative."

He said the doctors who receive the grants can do anything they wish with the money. That includes, he said, "putting the money in a tin can and burying it."

Gettman said the offer of direct grants is no different than a community proposing to build an office with free rent to attract doctors.

"It's according to where you want to put the money," he said.

Pierre Van Cortlandt became New York State's first lieutenant governor in 1777. His home was Van Cortlandt Manor, which still overlooks where the Croton River joins the Hudson River in Croton-on-Hudson in Westchester County.

For the Second Inaugural

The Washington Post reports that in preparation for Jan. 20 President Nixon has been studying a number of inaugural addresses, including those of Franklin D. Roosevelt. It does not necessarily follow that he plans to use FDR's approach to domestic affairs as a model for his own second term in office.

It is an intriguing thought, all the same. Roosevelt said in 1937, "I see one-third of the nation ill-housed, ill-clad, ill-nourished" and expressed his conviction that the American people would take steps to end this state of affairs. That would not be a bad frame of mind in which to address ourselves to the problems of today.

The situation is much different in some ways. At the time of FDR's second inaugural the nation was struggling out of the Great Depression and, though Hitler and Mussolini were in power and the smell of world war was in the air, the emphasis here at home was largely on domestic concerns. The main thrust of Mr. Nixon's presidency thus far has been in the area of international relations; he has been preoccupied not only with the war in Vietnam, but with the important task of improving U. S. relations with the Soviet Union and China.

Meanwhile, attention to domestic affairs has lagged. The second Nixon inaugural would be an auspicious time to turn the country back again to a closer examination of its problems here at home. The President might do well to set forth the shortcomings of our society as he sees them and then in effect paraphrase Franklin Roosevelt's words in 1937: "It is not in despair that I paint you that picture. I paint it for you in Hope — because the nation, seeing and understanding the injustice in it, proposes to paint it out."

THE NATION . . . by Martin F. Nolan

From Princeton to Palm Springs

WASHINGTON — The scene was the campus of Princeton. The seminar was called "The United States: Its Problems, Impact and Image in the World."

The dinner audience on the night of Dec. 4, 1968, applauded the guest speaker, who had just accepted an appointment from the President-elect. The speech was unpublicized at the time.

"My primary responsibility, as I see it," said Henry A. Kissinger, "is to make sure that every responsible point of view — and responsible is defined in a very generous manner — that every responsible point of view gets a fair hearing.

"I want to say now, said the Harvard don, confronting his peers, "that it is in providing this spectrum of considerations and hearing every point of view of significance that I would want the success of my efforts to be judged

"The great danger of war seems to me not to lie in the deliberate actions of wicked men but in the inability of harassed men to manage events that have run away with them," he continued.

SPEAKING with a doomed foresight as poignant as the ruins of Bach Mai Hospital in Hanoi, he said, "When the scope for action is at a minimum. When the knowledge is greatest, the scope for creative action has often disappeared . . . I am trying to say that whether one acts or doesn't act depends on some moral or philosophical judgment as well as on judgments of fact."

His moral and philosophical judgment led him to the White House, Kissinger added. "Now these are some of the concerns which have led me to accept the offer of the President-elect. He has insisted that he wanted to hear every point of view, that he wanted to make sure that the best talent in the country, whether or not it agreed with pronouncements he made in the past, would receive a hearing.

"And I can tell you, speaking for myself as well as for the President-elect, that every effort will be made to give the best talent in the country an opportunity to present their views.

"Many of you have worked with me for many years and you know what I have stood for and you know, I hope, that I will continue to stand for this no matter what my position is."

To all those people who called him "Henry" — John Kenneth Galbraith, Arthur Schlesinger, Martin Peretz, George Bell, Robert Manning, Charles Mathias — Kissinger pledged that "the doors of my office are open to your ideas to invite you to share them with me."

FOUR YEARS later Kissinger refused to share ideas with the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. According to several reliable accounts, President Nixon didn't heed "the best talent" in the Joint Chiefs of Staff, never mind the best talent in the country.

Four Decembers ago Kissinger spoke humbly at Princeton about "what I conceive to be my role in the policy-making process." This December, as American bombs were falling over North Vietnam, Kissinger was in Palm Springs, Calif., vacationing.

He stayed at the mansion of a movie producer, Bob Evans, ex-husband of actress Ali MacGraw far away from Princeton seminars and Harvard classroom.

From Princeton to Palm Springs, Henry Kissinger presses on, searching for "the best talent in the country" and "every responsible point of view" on which "I would want the success of my efforts to be judged."

A WORD EDGEWISE . . . by George Meany

Labor and the 'Cold War'

EDITOR'S NOTE: George Meany, president of the AFL-CIO, is the guest writer of this column today at the invitation of John P. Roche, the regular columnist.

We of the labor movement are constantly being called all sorts of terrible names because we still believe there are wolves in the world.

For instance, we are denounced as "Cold War dinosaurs" because we refuse to take the Soviet "trade union movement" seriously. What we know is that this bogus union is headed by a secret policeman — it's as much of a union as the old Nazi "Labor Front."

We refuse to be taken in by the neo-isolationists who say that the rest of the world is none of our business. It's too bad about the Soviet Jews, they say, but that's their internal affair. We can't be the policeman of the world.

WELL, I don't suggest that we should be the policeman of the world, but I would urge some of our intellectual friends to read the Nobel lecture of Aleksandr Solzhenitsyn — the lecture he couldn't deliver because the Russian government wouldn't allow him to accept the prize. "There are no 'internal affairs' left on our crowded earth," wrote Solzhenitsyn. "and mankind's sole salvation lies in everyone making everything his business; in the people of the East being vitally concerned with what is thought in the West; the people of the West vitally concerned with what goes on in the East."

We in the American labor movement are vitally concerned. For example, you don't have to be Jewish to like Israel. You just have to believe in certain principles — which happen coincidentally to be the principles of our labor movement. What are they?

First is a belief in democracy. But, of course, everybody believes in democracy. Maybe so . . . but there are a number of people who, when pushed, qualify this. They are for democracy but . . . they are for democracy under certain conditions. How often have you heard so-called sophisticated people say, "Oh, I'm all for democracy, but let's face it: you can't have democracy in the underdeveloped countries" — in what they fashionably call the "Third World."

This form of cultural snobbery turned up a while back in the "New York Times Magazine" when Prof. John Kenneth Galbraith presented his thoughts on a recent trip to China. He was very impressed by what he saw, but we found his views in one area particularly interesting. As you may know, Dr. Galbraith thinks that trade unions are obsolete in a country like the United States — they keep making trouble for economic "experts." He looked around for unions in Communist China, but there weren't any. He concluded, "Unions seem to have been a casualty of the Cultural Revolution. The Chinese are assigned to jobs and they are required to remain where they are assigned."

WELL, I GUESS that explains why there are no unions. You can't have unions in a society where people are forced to work when and where the government tells them to. But what does the liberal professor think of this system? Listen: "The Chinese economy isn't the American or European future. But it is the Chinese future. And let there be no doubt: for the Chinese it works."

In other words, it's no good for us Americans and other enlightened folks, but it's okay for the Chinese. It's okay if they don't have unions. It's okay if they can't choose where and when to work. After all, as Galbraith sees it, they're just Chinese. They don't know any better.

This may be the fashionable way of thinking in some intellectual circles, but — if anyone is interested in a plumber's view — it is narrow-minded, bigoted, and patronizing. And for those of us with good memories it has a curious resemblance to a line we used to hear: "Nazism is not for Americans, but it's the kind of system the Germans need."

Richard Burton gives brigade $200,000

LONDON (AP) — Actor Richard Burton reportedly turned down a royal request to star in a charity concert to raise money for a British ambulance brigade. Instead, he sent the brigade 100,000 pounds, or $200,000.

The Daily Express said today that the request came from Princess Margaret, sister of Queen Elizabeth II and president of the St. John Ambulance Brigade, which operates on donations.

Today In History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Tuesday, Jan. 9, the ninth day of 1973. There are 356 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1945, American forces invaded the Japanese-held island of Luzon in the Philippines.

On this date:

In 1719, France declared war on Spain.

In 1788, Connecticut became the fifth state to ratify the Constitution

In 1861, Mississippi seceded from the Union.

In 1919, Grand Duchess Charlotte ascended the throne in Luxembourg.

In 1942, at the beginning of the Pacific war, Japanese reinforcements were pouring into the Philippines.

In 1964, anti-American riots broke out in Panama.

Ten years ago: The National Academy of Sciences concluded that the United States had enough natural resources to meet its needs for at least the rest of this century.

Five years ago: A U.S. Surveyor space vehicle made a soft landing on the moon and sent back pictures of the lunar landscape.

One year ago: The once-great luxury liner Queen Elizabeth was destroyed by fire in the Hong Kong harbor, where the ship was being fitted as a floating university.

Today's birthdays: President Nixon is 60. Folk singer Joan Baez is 32.

Thought for today: A wise man will make more opportunities than he finds — Sir Francis Bacon, English philosopher, 1561-1626.

Canada curbs amphetamines

The Canadian government has decided to quit fooling around with abuse of amphetamines. The serious problem such drugs pose in the United States suggests the wisdom of similar action here.

New regulations in Canada in effect ban the two most popular uses of amphetamines, as pep pills and in diet control. Henceforth they may be used only in treatment of six specific conditions. These cnclude epilepsy, Parksinson's disease, and narcolepsy, the latter an uncontrollable tendency to fall asleep. The others are low blood pressure associated with anesthesia, some forms of mental retardation with brain disfunction, and hyperkinetic disorders in children.

A time limit is placed on unreviewed use of amphetamines even under a doctor's prescription. If use for longer than 30 days is deemed necessary by a doctor, he must submit the name of another doctor who confirms the diagnosis.

This seems direct and to the point. Some might argue that continued use of amphetamines in diet control and as a stimulant ought to be permitted under medical supervision, but in view of how badly this has been abused we have doubts about it.

What the situation requires is firm restriction of these drugs to cases where they are medically indicated. The casual use of amphetamines for other purposes which is so common in the United States ought to be stopped.

Dear Abby:

A shower of bath arguments

DEAR ABBY: Germaine Greer is going to crucify you. She went on record as saying that a woman's natural odor is nothing to be ashamed of, and any man who didn't like it could go jump in the lake. And now you come along with your statement that a man should bathe daily and a woman can't bathe enough!

As the world's most widely read columnist, how are you going to defend yourself against Germaine Greer, the most outspoken proponent of Women's Lib?

ABBY FAN IN BOSTON

DEAR ABBY: Germaine Greer can to go her mikveh and I'll go to mine. (P.S. Mikveh means bath.)

DEAR ABBY: I am mystified over your remarks on bathing. Thanks for enlightening men. I had always heard that all men were created equal. I never realized that women were born "dirter" than men. I knew that a woman is paid less for doing the same job as a man, but until now I didn't know it was because she was offensive.

I'm amazed at you, Abby. You must have water on the brain from spending so much time in the bathtub.

S. K. H.

DEAR S. K. H.: Men and women are NOT created equal-anatomically speaking. Unlike the male reproductive organ, the female's is an orifice which constantly produces a secretion which is normally somewhat odoriferous. She is not necessarily "unclean," but a woman who wants to be forever fragrant will not spare the soap and water.

DEAR ABBY: In conjunction with your recent letter concerning bathing: Will you please stress the fact that MEN need underarm deodorant as well as women?

My husband and I are square dancers, and I sure wish I could tell some of these men that it isn't their swinging that makes me dizzy, it's just the fact that I am holding my breath-and a gal can hold her breath just so long before she loses consciousness.

Please print this, Abby. There are a lot of square dancers, and it could be a lot more fun.

A SQUARE IN MICHIGAN

DEAR SQUARE: Consider it done. It's not easy to get through while you're holding your nose.

DEAR ABBY: I am one man who wants to thank you for taking the stand you did regarding women bathing.

Several years ago I had a secretary who splashed on cologne several times a day. (She probably couldn't stand her own odor.) Between the cologne and her body odor, she turned me against one of the world's loveliest fragrances.

I knew she didn't bathe much because her elbows were always dirty, and her filthy feet showed through her hosiery!

She was the talk of the office and although her work was excellent I had to let her go. I frankly told her why, which didn't seem to bother her.

I have let men go for the same reason. Some men may shower daily but they use deodorant to take care of the perspiration acquired during the stress and strain of the daily routine, which is unfair to the coworkers. Forgive my typing. I typed this myself while my secretary was out to lunch.

NEW YORK (AP) — Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

Cancer is the disease people dread the most, but heart disease takes twice as big a toll. The No. 1 killer, it claims each year the lives of 358.4 out of every 100,000 Americans. Cancer kills 160.9.

Natural disasters often take a greater toll of bird life than of animal or human life. For example, flights of migrating Lapland longspurs were caught in a vast, blinding, wet snowstorm over Minnesota and Iowa in 1904. Naturalists estimated that more than a million birds died.

Quotable notables: "No man is justified in doing evil on the grounds of expediency."— Theodore Roosevelt.

Quality not size: So much genius and knowledge spread from ancient Athens that many people have the idea it was a gigantic metropolis. Actually, however, even during its golden age under Pericles, Athens had a population of only 300,000 — smaller than that of Omaha. This is no knock on Omaha. It hasn't been around as long as Athens.

Worth remembering: "The three ages of man are: school tablet, aspirin tablet — and stone tablet."

Death comes to people in odd ways: Agathocles, tyrant of Sicily, was killed at 95 when he swallowed a toothpick.

Robert Burton, author of "That Anatomy of Melancholy," astrologically picked the day he would die — and did.

On the other hand, Chalcas, the soothsayer, died laughing because he thought he had outlived the predicted hour of his death.

It was Jonathan Swift who observed, "We have just enough religion to make us hate but not enough to make us love one another."

New Way Found To Stop Hair Loss, Grow More Hair

HOUSTON, TEXAS — If you don't suffer from male pattern baldness, you can now stop your hair loss . . . and grow more hair.

For years "they said it couldn't be done". But now a firm of laboratory consultants has developed a treatment for both men and women, that is not only stopping hair loss . . . but is really growing hair!

They don't even ask you to take their word for it. They invite you to try the treatment and see for yourself!

Naturally they would not offer this opportunity unless the treatment worked. However, it is impossible to help everyone.

The great majority of cases of excessive hair fall and baldness are the beginning and more fully developed stages of male pattern baldness and cannot be helped.

But, if you are not already slick bald, how can you be sure what is actually causing your hair loss Even if baldness may seem to "run in your family," this is certainly no proof of the cause of YOUR hair loss.

Hair loss caused by sebum can also run in your family, and many other conditions can cause hair loss. No matter which one is causing your hair loss, if you wait until you are slick bald and your hair roots are dead, you are beyond help. So, if you still have any hair on top of your head, and would like to stop your hair loss and grow more hair . . . now is the time to do something about it before it's too late.

Wall Street: Back to fundamentals

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Every so often a fad develops in the stock market and is acclaimed as the new way to wealth. Its promoters scorn old techniques and speak condescendingly about the old fools who adhere to them.

The fad of the 1960s, as most investors recall, was performance. If a stock didn't pay off immediately you got rid of it.

The fad worked wonders for its promoters, many of them mutual fund managers, some of whom became rich and celebrated. They developed theories to explain their brilliance and managed to steal time from money-making to impart their wisdom to graduate business school classes.

As with any fad, this one expired as the more serious students of the market caught up with it. It was found that while performance-minded brokers and managers earned yachts for themselves, their customers were left up the creek in a canoe.

By the late 1960s the performance theory was riddled. Several studies showed that some funds would have done much better by just sitting on their stocks instead of selling and buying time after time. And then the market collapsed, taking with it what was left of performance.

While the personality of the current and future market cannot be easily characterized, as was the market of the 1960s, a good case can be made for a return to fundamentals — a clear reaction to the earlier excesses.

Evidence of this may be sparse but it is there in the big bank accounts and insurance policies that ordinary people own in preference to stocks. And when these people return to the market, it's a good bet they'll remain cautious.

Adding documentary evidence to the conservative argument are statistics just compiled by Wright Investors' Service showing that blue-chip stocks have grown in value during every decade this century, including the '30s.

If you bought the stocks that make up the Dow Jones industrial average, the study shows, you would have a price gain of 1875.25 per cent and a dividend gain of 1645.94 per cent, or an average annual growth of 9.4 per cent for the past 72 years.

Even in the late and unlamented 1930s the average showed an investment growth of 2.9 per cent a year. Prices fell by 20.32 per cent, but this was offset by dividend gains of 40.22 per cent for the 10 years.

Massillon still fights city strike

MASSILLON, Ohio (AP)— Massillon disposed of its teachers strike Monday night and turned its attention today toward settling a three-day-old work stoppage by city employes.

Striking teachers had announced that they reached agreement with the Massillon Board of Education some 12 hours after a Stark County judge ordered them to return to work.

The teachers had declined to respond to the court order, but spokesmen for the Massillon Education Association announced late Monday night that agreement had been reached and that teachers would return to classrooms this morning.

There was no progress reported in the city's other strike, involving around 50 garbage collectors, street repairmen, painters, electricians and park department employes.

The workers, members of Local 996 of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employes, began striking this weekend after the city offered them only a 5.5 per cent salary increase.

LEAVE ENDS — Pvt. Jim Minney, son of Mrs. Thelma Minney, 215 N. Fayette St., has returned to the Marine Corps base in California after spending his holiday leave here. He attended school in Jeffersonville. His enlistment in the Marine Corps will terminate in May.

Blue Cross rate boost rejected

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—A request by Hospital Services, Inc., for a 15.7 per cent rate increase for direct pay subscribers has been denied, the Ohio Department of Insurance said Monday.

The increase was refused because the Department of Insurance believes the firm is not doing its job in keeping hospital costs down, according to Insurance Director Kenneth Deshelter.

"It is the responsibility of Blue Cross to take action to control hospital costs or to act as an adversary on behalf of its subscribers. It is our feeling that this is not the case with Canton Blue Cross," DeShelter said.

The 4,860-mile-long Trans-Canada Highway is one of the longest in the world.

SESAME CHICKEN bakes in a sauce made with cream of chicken soup sparked with curry and sweet mixed pickles.

By JOAN O'SULLIVAN

SESAME CHICKEN WITH CURRY SAUCE

½ cup flour
2 tablespoons sesame seed
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1 frying chicken (2½ pounds), cut in serving pieces
1 egg, beaten
2 tablespoons salad oil
1 can (10½ ounces) condensed cream of chicken soup
1-3 cup milk
1¼ teaspoons curry powder
½ cup coarsely chopped sweet mixed pickles

Combine flour, sesame seed, salt and pepper; mix well. Dip chicken in egg; coat with flour mixture. Cook in oil until lightly browned on all sides.

Combine remaining ingredients; mix well. Pour over chicken. Cover and cook over low heat until chicken is tender, about 30 minutes. Serve with hot rice and assorted condiments as desired. Serves 4.

Rumanian cooks like to season with paprika and dill. They're the ingredients that add to the flavorful appeal of this chicken recipe, one of many excellent ones in a new cookbook, "Yogurt Cookery — Good and Gourmet" by Kay Shaw Nelson (Luce). Miss Shaw has assembled over 250 recipes from appetizers through desserts that will delight yogurt lovers. One of my favorites is:

CHOCOLATE cones are filled with Cherry Creme.

BAKED YOGURT CHICKEN

1 frying chicken, 2½ to 3 pounds, cut up
Salt, pepper to taste
6 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 tablespoons flour
1 tablespoon paprika
2 cups yogurt at room temperature
¼ pound fresh mushrooms, cleaned and sliced
2 tablespoons fresh lemon juice
2 tablespoons chopped fresh dill or parsley

Wash the chicken pieces and wipe dry. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Melt 4 tablespoons of butter in a large skillet and fry the chicken pieces in it until golden on all sides. With tongs remove to a buttered shallow baking dish.

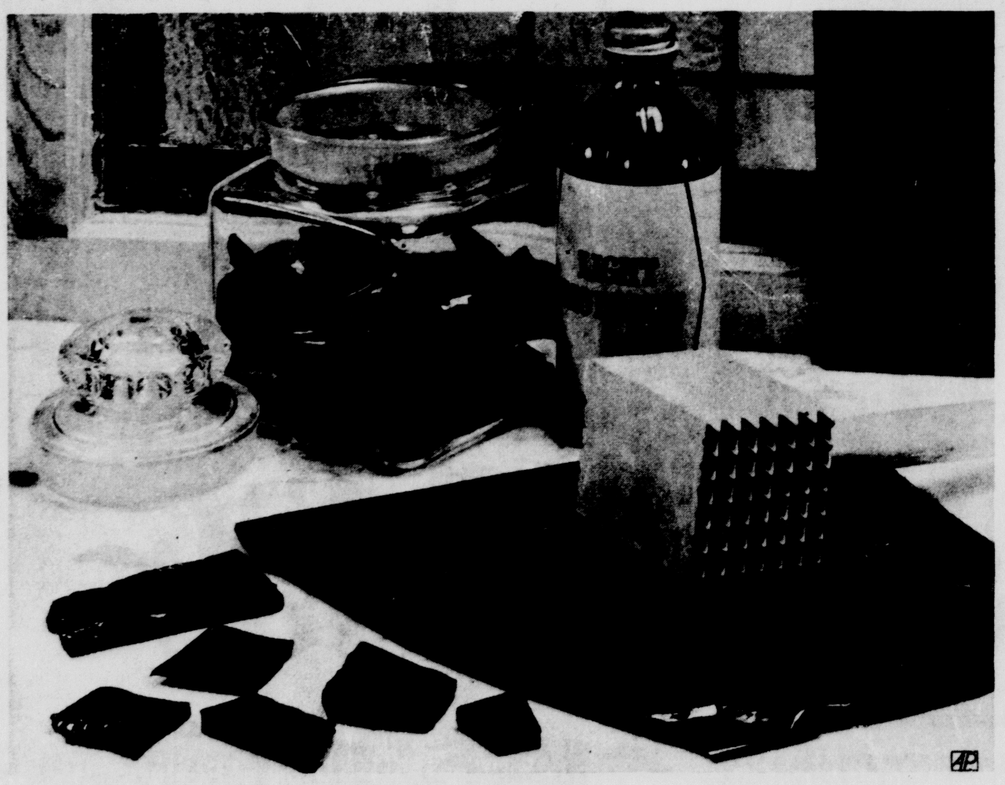
Sprinkle the flour and paprika into the pan juices and cook, stirring, for 1 minute. Stir in the yogurt and mix well. Spoon over the chicken pieces. Saute the mushrooms in the remaining 2 tablespoons of butter and the lemon juice for 1 minute and spoon over the casserole ingredients. Sprinkle with the dill.

Bake, covered, in a preheated moderate oven (325 degrees F) for about 1¼ hours, or until the chicken is tender. Serves 4.

A good dessert makes a grand final to any meal. Whether you're serving chicken or beef, the family will go for this chocolate treat. Remember the recipe next time you entertain. It's an eye-catching treat that guests will long remember.

To chop correctly use a large sharp-pointed knife; hold the point firmly against the cutting board with one hand and with the other bring blade up and down moving in a semi-circle.

Molasses taffy comes from Pennsylvania



By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

A friend sent us some homemade candy that we had never tasted before. Curious about it, we asked for the recipe and here it is along with the donor's note about its origin:

"When I was a little girl growing up in Scranton, Pennsylvania a lot of our neighbors were immigrants from Wales and the women in these families loved to make candy. One of the most popular recipes was for a molasses taffy. After it had been poured into a pan and had set, it was cracked — usually with the good solid handle of an old-fashioned kitchen utensil — into irregular pieces. We children used to suck on it to get the full molasses flavor. Because we were fascinated at seeing it hammered, not cut, we always called it 'crackin' candy'."

MOLASSES TAFFY

2 cups sugar
1-3 cup butter
¼ cup light molasses
½ teaspoon baking soda
¼ teaspoon salt
½ cup water
¼ teaspoon lemon extract

Into a heavy medium saucepan turn all the ingredients except the lemon extract. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until sugar is dissolved and mixture comes to a boil. Continue cooking, stirring occasionally, to 250 degrees on a candy thermometer or when a little of the mixture, dropped into very cold water, forms a firm ball. Continue cooking, stirring slowly but constantly, to 290 degrees on a candy thermometer or when a little of the mixture, dropped into very cold water, becomes hard and brittle. Remove from heat; add lemon extract, blending well. Pour quickly into a buttered pan (13 by 9 by 2 inches). Cool; use a meat mallet or some similar device to crack into irregular pieces. Makes 1 pound.

Finely powdered sodium bicarbonate is used as a leavening agent and as an important ingredient in commercially prepared baking powders.

PUCO chief seeks powers to regulate cable TV firms

By DEAN SCHOTT
Associated Press Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The 40-year-old chief of the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio wants to push his agency into an area never before chartered for state government regulation—the cable television industry.

Henry Eckhart said the PUCO "should take jurisdiction and protect consumers" from the industry that reaches into nearly every one of Ohio's 88 counties.

The aim of state regulation would be, he said, "to make sure cable television is available to as many persons in Ohio as possible.

"We do not need cable television companies coming in and picking off just the wealthy communities. What about the inner city?"

The commission chairman said he is concerned that inner city residents, as well as persons living in rural and unincorporated areas, "would not be able to negotiate freely and fairly with the companies."

For a monthly charge, the companies offer clearer signals of local stations and a selection of out-of-town stations, round-the-clock news and stock market information.

Regulation of the industry up to now has been through the Federal Communications Commission and a patchwork of municipal ordinances.

But, Eckhart sees the need for state regulation as necessary to protect Ohio consumers. He said the regulations would cover such things as the quality of the service offered and the prices a company could ask.

However, the shape of the legislation is still in the works. Eckhart is awaiting a Legislative Service Commission report on the industry in Ohio and plans to base his regulatory proposals on the study's findings.

The study was began by Richard Masek, a Legislative Commission researcher, last July. He hopes to finish the report in two months.

Masek said there are about 125 parent cable television companies operating more than 200 franchises around the state.

Youth stricken with meningitis

MOWRYSTOWN — A 16-year-old boy from near this Highland County village was listed in critical condition Monday in Cincinnati Children's Hospital, suffering from bacterial meningitis.

Jeff Harvey, a junior at Whiteoak High School, is the second person in this area to develop meningitis in a month.

County health officials discounted the threat of an epidemic, but urged people who have been in close contact with the boy to see their physician.

White House staff slashed

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon, according to close associates, has cut the White House professional staff by about 14 per cent since announcing plans to reorganize and slim down the federal bureaucracy.

These sources said even more will go.

Nixon, who has presided over history's biggest expansion of the White House staff, told newsmen at Camp David, Md., last November that he expected to set an example for government efficiency by ordaining that the most sizable personnel cutbacks would come in the White House staff.

To date, according to White House figures, 23 White House professionals have been announced as returning to private life and 13 others have been announced as being in line for other positions within the bureaucracy.

It is on the basis of these figures that White House sources said there already has been a reduction of about 14 per cent in professional personnel.

No figures have been given on secretarial and clerical employes who may have left because their bosses were fired or sent to other agencies.

The White House figures apparently are based upon a budgeted personnel limited to 510 bodies—male or female—for the 1973 fiscal year that ends June 30. Recent Civil Service reports would indicate, however, that the White House obviously has topped its personnel ceiling and may indeed be employing more than 600 persons—plus an undisclosed number borrowed from such agencies as the Defense and State departments and the Central Intelligence Agency.

London flu not heavy in state

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Dr. John Ackerman, chief of the Ohio Bureau of Preventive Medicine, Monday said there have been no widespread outbreaks of London flu in the state, despite the federal government's inclusion of the state on a growing list of states reporting the disease.

The National Center for Disease Control (NCDC) in Atlanta put Ohio on its growing list because two cases were reported in Cleveland, according to Ackerman.

Ackerman added that the two cases reported in Cleveland haven't even been checked yet.

The Cleveland area has reported a slight increase in respiratory illnesses, "but the rest of the state is pretty quiet," he said.

At least 18 states have reported cases of the new A-England virus, which is known as the London flu.

"The London flu is no worse than any other flu. It's just different," Ackerman said.

The medical chief said the flu lasts from five days to a week and warned the elderly and persons with heart disease or emphysema to see a doctor immediately if they catch it.

"It may now be too late for such people to get flu shots this year, but a booster shot may help if they had a flu shot last year," Ackerman said.

3 houses hit by blast, fire

CINCINNATI (AP)—A gas explosion and fire destroyed one house in nearby Addyston and heavily damaged two other structures late Monday night and early today.

No injuries were reported.

The sole occupant of the house was a partially blind man who said he smelled gas and called police. A policeman who responded also smelled gas, and got the man out of the house just before the explosion.

An adjoining house and a restaurant caught fire.

2 men receive governor's award

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Ernest J. Bowhn of Cleveland and John A. Kruse of Piqua received the Governor's Award for Community Action this week.

Subsidy end blow to farmers

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The U.S. Department of Agriculture is discontinuing its subsidies to farmers who spend money improving their soil and may also be planning to stop paying farmers to set side a portion of their land from production.

State Agriculture Director Eugene Abercrombie said Monday that if both programs are ended, Ohio farmers will lose at least $71 million in subsidies paid each year by the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee.

The news comes amid increasing uncertainty that Ohio farmers will be able to get any federal help at all in getting back on their feet following the disastrous fall harvest, delayed by wet weather.

Abercrombie said the USDA has already discontinued its Rural Environmental Assistance Program, which subsidized farmers who did contour plowing, drainage tile installation or other soil improvement work on their land.

And he said it appears the program of payments to farmers for taking part of their land out of production is also in a state of suspended animation and may not be resumed.

"This is going to mean that we'll be back strictly on a supply and demand basis and farmers will have no incentive to do the conservation work we spent so many years putting together," Abercrombie said.

The director said he hopes congressional pressure will force President Nixon to reverse his decision last month cutting off the flow of low-interest emergency assistance loans to farmers who need help getting started on next year's crops in the wake of the bad fall.

The alternative, he said, is to use $1.5 million from another federal program to guarantee about $50 million in loans at commercial rates to farmers who need them.

But the strings attached to that $1.5 million may not permit the loan guarantees and the director said if that's the case, "we'll be up a real stump."

TV Viewing

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Gene Shalit will join the regular cast of NBC's "Today" show next Monday. So prepare yourself. He's a wild man in both word and appearance.

He's also one of the few movie critics in this hamlet with a sense of humor, a serious crime in Manhattan reviewing circles.

Physically, he resembles a free-lance anarchist. His hair goes in all directions and he sports a thick black mustache.

Some of us already know him as the movie critic whose reviews are seen on WNBC-TV here, KNBC-TV in Los Angeles and 100 other assorted NBC television affiliates around the land.

Others may know him as the guy who writes zany outbursts for the Ladies Home Journal, Newsday and Sport magazine.

Still others may know him as the movie reviewer on NBC's "Monitor" radio show or as the "Today" book editor since 1969.

It'll be good to see him turned loose on a thrice-a-week basis on "Today," where he'll continue as book editor, but he also will have a crack at sports and the lighter side of life, if such still exists.

The Shalit television style is hard to put in print. When he's deciphering a film for the citizenry, his eyebrows rise and fall with vigor and he makes no bones about his likes and dislikes.

His approach basically is that of a guy who bumps into a pal at the neighborhood tavern and tells him he's just seen a movie. A dog of a movie, sometimes. A great flick, at other times.

But he never proclaims the film " a profoundly moving experience" or some such lofty bilge. That's the best part about him. He works in plain English, with sharp, funny observations.

Shalit was born 41 years ago in Manhattan. He came to broadcasting in a roundabout way. He started off as a freelance writer, than began doing a column for the Ladies Home Journal. He also became movie critic for the now-defunct Look magazine.

He was at work committing scrivened mayhem one day when the phone rang. An NBC executive was on the other end.

"He said, 'I've been reading some of the things you write, and I've been wondering,'" Shalit recalled. "'Do you think you can talk out loud the way you write?'"

Whereupon Shalit went to audition for NBC radio. The rest is history, but he still gives his audition bad reviews.

"I tended to orate," he said. "Instead of talking to one person I was talking to "the multitudes' and that's not the way to do it. Now, it never occurs to me that anybody's watching or listening. And maybe they're not."

That's a bad attitude for a New York Critic, Shalit, a bad attitude. And a welcome one.

Blizzard of paper hampers PUCO

By DEAN SCHOTT
Associated Press Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)— Three harried men hunch wearily over 3,278 pages of fine print in the early days of 1973, trying to make up their minds if you should pay more for your telephone one day.

This tremendous task forms just part of a monumental paperjam overpowering Ohio's Public Utilities Commission—a backlog of 49 rate cases, some of them dating back to 1969.

"There will be no relief from the tremendous amount of work," said PUCO Chairman Henry Eckhart "if the utility companies continue to file cases, and the inflation that causes the cases continues."

The mountain of fine print Eckhart and his fellow commissioners, Carl Johnson and Elmer A. Keller, pored over was the harvest of testimony and exhibits from just one case— the request by Ohio Bell Telephone Co. for a $165 million a year increase in rates. It's the largest such request in Ohio history.

Going back to December 1969 is the water rate increase being sought by Ohio Water Service Co. for a small number of homeowners in Ashtabula. The most recent case was filed last month when General Telephone Co. of Marion asked for a $13.4 million annual hike in their rates.

Eckhart noted the irony of the 3,278-page report by saying it was spawned by a mere two-page request by Ohio Bell on Aug. 9, 1971.

Since then, he said, "3,500 hours have been spent on the rate request by Ohio Bell, involving engineering evaluations and auditing. We have done more preparing the Ohio Bell case than ever before."

Even though the research and eight weeks of hearings have been completed, the commission chairman said Ohio Bell will have to wait its turn for a decision. "It's a matter of first come, first serve," he said, showing that Marion Water Co., Cincinnati Gas & Electric and Toledo Edison cases are ahead of Ohio Bell.

Eckhart attributes the paperjam to the changing nature of utility cases and inadequate staff to handle the research and hearings.

"In the early 60s," he said, "the rate cases were simpler. But now they are larger, more complex and with more difficult questions involved."

Cases today, he said, require major audits by accountants and extensive analyses by engineers of the company's rate base— the equipment and facilities being used and that could be used by the utility.

As a further example of the complexity, Eckhart said, "Ohio Bell has nine different rate bands (areas) in its pending request."

The commission chairman said the agency needs more accountants, more engineers and more economists to review utility company rate applications and to testify at public hearings on the cases.

Eckhart compared his staff with that of New York Public Service Commission, noting Ohio did not even come close. He said New York has 600 persons in utility company regulation and 100 engineers, while Ohio has 112 and 7, in the respective categories.

Since he joined the PUCO, he has enlarged the staff from 129 to 195.

He said he plans to ask the 110th General Assembly for an increase over the agency's current biennial budget of $5.1 million. But he added, "Under the constraints of no new taxes and no new programs . . . it still will not be adequate."

As Eckhart sees it, "more money, more staff and a slowdown in utility cases" will be the only wedges that break up the paperjam at the PUCO.

Unusual high school caters to pregnant student body

By COURTENAY CANNADY
Associated Press Writer

BALTIMORE (AP) — With math, science and social studies, the required courses at Edgar Allen Poe High School include prenatal health and child care.

All of the school's students are pregnant.

Teen-age pregnancy, in fact, is a prerequisite to enroll at Poe.

"Being pregnant is a traumatic experience for many girls, and they need to be away from their peers to regroup their forces," explains Poe's principal, Vivian Washington.

The 520 pregnant teen-agers enrolled at the 7-year-old public school also are keeping up with students in other high schools and preparing for jobs and motherhood.

"The girls have strong feelings about themselves, that maybe they're not good persons," said Mrs. Washington, but "we say, 'All right, ... what are you going to do about the future?'

"'You're going to be a parent, responsible for another life. But first you must be responsible for yourself.'"

While at Poe, the girls also must be enrolled in health clinics and social-service programs. Nutritionists and doctors pay regular calls to supplement the care.

The curriculum is designed to ease the teen-agers' return to their former high schools or find jobs after delivery. They may transfer to their former schools six weeks after a postdelivery medical checkup.

Poe alumnae who do not return to finish high school get help finding work from job placement coordinator Jean Bowman, who says she helped find jobs for 187 girls last year.

Mrs. Washington describes Poe as a kind of crisis center where pregnant teen-agers can count on support from their classmates and teachers in an informal atmosphere.

Along with a brisk student turnover, one of the toughest problems is "puncturing the unreality" which accompanies many expectant mothers to Poe, said Lois White, a job placement staffer.

When they arrive, most students do not grasp what is required in having, and caring for, babies, Mrs. White added.

"What is needed," said Mrs. Washington, "is to bring home what being the head of a family means — the responsibility as well as the sex and pregnacy."

Vietnam war weighs heavily on Pope

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI says that a peace settlement in Vietnam still weighs on his mind.

Speaking from his studio window Sunday to a crowd of 4,000 persons gathered in St. Peter's Square, the pontiff described a peace "which seemed so close and proved to be so illusory."

LONDON (AP) — Princess Anne and Lt. Mark Phillips, a member of the Queen's Dragoon Guards, are reported by a London newspaper to be in love.

YOU BORN TODAY, as a Capricornian, are an energetic and determined individual, bent on making a success of himself at any cost. You are alert to seize any opportunity which comes your way and, even if, at times, success seems to elude you, you keep plodding until you reach the high plateaus you've aimed for. With your versatility, many fields are open to you, career-wise, but you would probably be happiest in the worlds of science, literature, the law, banking or real estate. Either music or poetry could prove stimulating hobbies. Traits to curb: secretiveness and undue suspicion of associates.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

To stimulate business, the owner of a suburban trailer park installed a set of climbing bars for children. However, in disregard of the manufacturer's advice, he placed the apparatus over a solid strip of blacktop.

One day, a 7-year-old boy lost his grip on the bars and fell heavily to the pavement. In short order, the park owner found himself on the target end of a lawsuit.

And the court ruled that the boy was indeed entitled to damages. The court said the defendant was guilty of negligence in creating a condition of special danger to the unwary young.

The rapid spread of trailer parks has focused attention on the responsibilities of the management in case of an accident. The law says the management must show both foresight and diligence in the way it maintains its premises.

BUT NOT every accident that happens in a trailer park is the park's fault. In another case, a woman was injured when a tree came crashing down on her trailer during a storm. She too sued for damages, arguing that the tree was decayed and should have been cut down.

Yet, there had been no signs of decay visible on the outside of the tree, nothing to put the management on the alert for trouble. The court laid the accident to an "act of God" and turned down the woman's claim.

Nor will the law blame the management if the victim has voluntarily "assumed the risk" of injury. Thus:

A woman taking a shower in a trailer park shower room gashed her foot on a broken tile. But when she demanded damages in court, the management pointed out that there were two other shower rooms which she knew could have been used with greater safety.

Rejecting her claim, the court said: "One who chooses to follow a dangerous course when there is a safe course known and available is said to have assumed the risk. This relieves the defendant of responsibility."

State Board of Education holds meet, reorganizes

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio State Board of Education had its first meeting of the year Monday and elected John Meckstroth, a Cincinnati attorney, its new president.

William Cossler, vice president of the Youngstown Building Material and Fuel Co., was chosen vice president.

Meckstroth has served on the board since 1965, when he was appointed to fill a vacancy. He then won re-election to his first full term.

Because of a new ruling creating staggered, six-year terms, the 23 members—all elected last November—had to draw lots on the number of years they would serve.

Six-year terms will be served by William Baker of Madison, Wallace Blake of Zanesville, Roy McKinley of Coshocton, David Rittenhouse of Toledo, Anthony Russo of Mayfield Heights, Cecil Sims of Piqua, Robert Williams of Xenia and Martha Wise of Elyria.

Serving four-year terms are Cossler, Thaddeus Garrett Jr. of Akron, Susan George of Canton, William Judd of Cincinnati, Mildred Madison of Cleveland, Wayne Shaffer of Bryan, Frances Voke of Columbus and Paul Walker of Bexley.

Those who drew the two-year terms are Everett Jung M.D. of Hamilton, Robert Lyons Sr. of Dayton, Meckstroth, Ward Miller of Portsmouth, Gene Norris of Berea, Thomas Russo of Maple Heights and Robert Walker of Adena.

The board adopted an interim report on special education that will be forwarded to the Ohio General Assembly. The 109th General Assembly enacted legislation mandating the board approve a final plan for education and habilitation of Ohio's handicapped children by July 1.

A new Neil A. Armstrong Joint Vocational School District was established by the board and includes the Wapakoneta City Schools in Auglaize County plus the Elida, Bath and Shawnee Local Schools in Allen County.

The board also approved two requests from school districts to issue bonds for construction of classroom facilities. The Western Local School District in Pike County was allowed a $190,000 issue and the Sheffield-Sheffield Lake City Schools in Lorain County were allowed $950,000.

Offer office for UMW

FARMINGTON, W.Va. (AP) — A group of businessmen has offered to construct a building to house the United Mine Workers headquarters in the Farmington area, which has been shaken twice this century by major mine disasters.

A spokesman for the Marion County group, headed by businessman John Manchin, said relocating union headquarters from Washington to Farmington would be "a real move back to the coalfields for the UMW."

UMW President Arnold Miller has said a union-wide convention this year will determine the site for the central offices, which he said should be moved to the coalfields.

More than 300 miners perished in an explosion at nearby Monongah in 1908, and 78 were entombed at Consolidation Coal Co.'s No. 9 mine here in 1968 following explosions and a fire.

10 horses killed

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Ten horses valued at about $70,000 were killed in a fire that swept through a private stable near an old race track in suburban North Randall Monday.

Lee Epley, the owner of the stable, said he was roused by another resident of his nearby home but that by the time he reached the barn the fire was too fierce to reach the horses.

Before You Buy Carpeting At A Supposedly Great Discount Better Check It Out! Some Of The Things You Might Want To Check Are:

1. The quality of the carpeting. Is it first quality goods or a second or irregular which may not give you the wear of service you want from an investment in floor covering.
2. The reliability of the firm from which you make your purchase. Do they stand behind each purchase? Do they do their own installation or is it 'farmed' out to be installed by someone other than a representative of their store? Can the company point with pride to many years of experience and many satisfied customers?
3. Some times when a price is quoted it is only the cost of the carpeting. It does not include the price of padding or installation. . .when these costs are added to the 'bargain' price of the carpet alone many times there are no savings to you at all.
4. To make certain, you have the best carpet value. . .after you have your 'price', check with other stores on the same quality of carpet. . .if it is a brand name, this is easy to do. . .if it is an off brand, you'll have to check the fiber content and other information which can be found on the back of the sample to get a true comparison.

Here at Matson's, floor covering is our only business, it is not a sideline. . .all our work is fully guaranteed, backed by over 30 years in the floor covering business. We carry a complete selection of fine quality, famous brand name carpet to select from. We'll give you a FREE ESTIMATE on your carpeting project. . .and we invite comparison!

Ohio prep powers pace AP cage ratings

State tourney rulers occupy No. 1 perches

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — It's really a new high school basketball season, but you would never know it by looking at The Associated Press state rankings.

The 1973 state tournament rulers, Class AAA Cleveland East Tech, Class AA Columbus Ready and Class A Gnadenhutten Indian Valley South still occupy their No. 1 seats.

East Tech and Ready have lost twice, but still carry weight with a voting statewide panel of sports writers and broadcasters.

East Tech, nipped by Cleveland Kennedy and Canton Lehman, piled up 138 points for a 27-vote margin over runnerup Hamilton Taft, 8-1, in Class AAA.

Boardman, beaten by East Tech last week, was sixth, Middletown seventh, Columbus South eighth, Canton Lehman ninth and Barberton, 10th.

Ready, whose losses have been to Class AAA powers Columbus Eastmoor and Lehman, picked up 159 points on its 8-2 beginning. The Silver Knights were 19 points in front of No. 2 Waverly, 7-0.

Indian Valley South, breezing along with a 7-0 mark, has pushed its winning streak to 36 games, despite the loss of allstate Bob Huggins.

The Tuscarawas Valley power collected 133 points for a nine-point margin over runnerup Marion Pleasant, 9-0 in basketball after winning the Ohio Class A football playoff crown.

The sports writers and broadcasters will continue to rate the teams weekly through the end of the regular season.

Mansfield Senior, 9-0, was third in Class AAA, followed by Newark, Springfield South, Boardman, Middletown, Columbus South, Canton Lehman and Barberton, in that order.

The No. 3 spot in Class AA belonged to Steubenville Catholic, 7-0. Rossford was fourth and Albany Alexander fifth.

SWL trips Cincinnati

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (AP)— "We played as poorly in the first half as we did during the entire game against Jacksonville," Coach Beryl Shipley said after his 13th-ranked Southwestern Louisiana team rallied to defeat Cincinnati 94-88 in the second half of a college basketball doubleheader at the Nassau Coliseum Monday night.

The Ragin' Cajuns were walloped 120-78 on Saturday by Jacksonville for their first loss and Shipley attributed his team's poor showing throughout most of the Cincinnati game to being mentally down from the Jacksonville game and the recent National Collegiate Athletic Association charges that Southwestern Louisiana had violated recruiting rules.

Dwight Lamar, Southwestern's high scorer with 32 points, stated that he hated to use the NCAA problem as a crutch, but it was definitely a factor in the Cajuns' poor showing in the first half.

Lamar scored six of his game-high 32 points in the final two minutes of overtime to insure the victory.

Southwestern was behind 46-27 at the half and didn't catch up until Jerry Bisbano's free throw with five minutes left in regulation time tied the score at 67-all

Lloyd Batts led Cincinnati with 29 points, including a rebound basket with 10 seconds left in regulation time to send the contest into overtime.

In the opener, Roger Powell and Rich Whitlow led a secondhalf surge that carried Illinois State to a 107-91 rout of Morehead, Ky., State. The winners led only 38-35 at the half but Powell scored 18 points and Whitlow 12 in the first 10 minutes of the second half as the Redbirds opened a 74-59 lead. Powell finished with 30 points and Whitlow had 28.

Allen sees tough struggle for Redskins in Super Bowl

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The last time the Miami Dolphins lost a football game it was to Washington—but that doesn't mean a thing, psychologically or otherwise, says Redskin Coach George Allen.

"We used a lot of different people then and so did they," Allen said Monday of the Redskins' 27-24 preseason triumph against the Dolphins, who then proceeded to chalk up a perfect regular-season record followed by playoff victories against Cleveland and Pittsburgh.

"It's as if the California Angels beat, say, the Los Angeles Dodgers in an exhibition, then they wound up in the World Series. One has nothing to do with the other."

Mentioning the Angels wasn't just by chance. It's their home, Anaheim Stadium, where the Redskins are working out for their first National Football League championship game since 1945.

They attracted some 4,000 young fans to their hour-long practice, then had to run for cover when more than half the spectators, ignoring the slim security force, vaulted the ballpark fences and stormed onto the field, seeking autographs, pictures and handshakes.

"It was heartening," Allen said of the turnout, "but scary."

The Redskins coach also said he couldn't understand how Washington has been installed as a slim favorite to beat the Dolphins in Super Bowl VII on Sunday.

"They're 16-0 and they've got the No. 1 offense and No. 1 defense in the league," he said. "And they've got the three best running backs on any one team," Larry Csonka, Mercury Morris and Jim Kiick.

The 'Skins generally brushed aside the idea that Miami might have a psychological edge over them, having already been in a Super Bowl while it's new to Washington.

"It's all the same game," said wide receiver Roy Jefferson. "You formulate a game plan, work on it, then go into the game and try to execute it, that's all."

Barons move fast to Jacksonville

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Owner Nick Mileti has confirmed what every Cleveland Barons hockey fan suspected for the past two weeks. The Barons are leaving town...and fast.

Mileti said the American Hockey League Barons, plagued by dismal turnouts and flagging enthusiasm, will play "most if not all" of their remaining season home games in Jacksonville, Fla. The announcement was made jointly with Jacksonville Mayor Hans Tanzler.

Alleged feuds in Dolphins ranks are laid to rest

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Larry Csonka is fed up with people trying to create a feud between Mercury Morris and Jim Kiick, his running partners in the Miami Dolphins' backfield.

"They love each other, they pull for each other," says Csonka. "They just hate to ride the bench. To a real football player, the bench is hell. As far as I can determine, nobody enjoys hell."

That's one feud down, one to go.

Then there's the Bob Griese- Earl Morrall stickiness at quarterback. When the icy, confident Griese suffered a busted leg in the season's fifth game, the 38-year-old Morrall came to the Dolphins' rescue.

He led 11 victories in a row.

Now, with Griese healed, Bob is No. 1 again for Sunday's Super Bowl VII matchup against the Washington Redskins. Old Earl is one of those bench-hating types, too, but again the anger is professional instead of personal.

Don Shula is the man who decides who'll play and it ripped the iron-jawed Miami coach apart to assign Morrall to the sidelines.

"It was difficult because Earl is such a first-class person on and off the field," Shula said Monday. "We wouldn't be standing here today, preparing for the Super Bowl, if it were not for Morrall. He picked us up in our darkest moment."

The darkest moment in a 16-0 season came when Griese was crumpled under a furious pass rush by San Diego Charger strongboys Deacon Jones and Ron East. Shula's heart was suddenly in his throat.

"Seeing Griese, the player of the year in the National Football League in 1971, laid out before you is a shocking thing," he said. "Then I turned to Earl for help. He responded, oh, how he responded."

Name 8 for NBA all-stars

NEW YORK (AP) — New York's Dave DeBusschere and Atlanta's Pete Maravich will be in the starting lineup for the first time when the National Basketball Association holds its annual All-Star Game in Chicago Jan. 28.

NBA Commissioner Walter Kennedy today announced the first eight players selected by writers and broadcasters to represent the East in the 23rd annual classic at Chicago Stadium.

John Havlicek of Boston was named for the eighth straight year, joining New York's Walt Frazier and DeBusschere, Atlanta's Maravich and Boston's Dave Cowens as starters.

Completing the first eight are Lou Hudson of Atlanta, Wes Unseld of Baltimore and Lenny Wilkens of Cleveland.

The eight coaches in the Eastern Conference will select six additional players for the East team. Since each NBA club must be represented by at least one player and no more than three, the coaches must pick at least one man from Buffalo, Houston and Philadelphia and no more than one additional player from New York, Boston or Atlanta.

Nixon pushes memorial to Clemente

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon, who named Roberto Clemente to his modernday National League all-star team last summer, now has become instrumental in establishing a memorial to the Pittsburgh Pirate outfielder.

Nixon was at his mountain retreat at Camp David, Md., last Sunday when he heard Clemente died in a plane crash en route to the earthquake in Managua, Nicaragua, as head of a relief project.

The next day Nixon released a statement which said in part:

"The best memorial we can build to his memory is to contribute generously for the relief of those he was trying to help: the earthquake victims in Nicaragua."

The President then wrote out a personal check for $1,000 on behalf of the cause and told his aide Richard Moore to find out if the Pirates had started a memorial fund.

Moore contacted Pirates owner John Galbreath who told him nothing concrete had been started. Moore asked if Galbreath and some of the Pittsburgh team could fly to Washington to meet with the President.

On Thursday, Galbreath, Steve Blass and Dave Giusti hopped aboard the owners' private aircraft for what was supposed to be a brief meeting with Nixon.

In Nixon's Oval Office, the President recounted his memories of Clemente, much to the amazement of the Pirate players who did not realize the baseball fan the President is.

Nixon told the trio to make sure they form a corporation and get a tax exempt status for any donations.

He also said the White House staff had taken up a collection of $550 for the fund.

Thus the Roberto Clemento Memorial Fund, Three Rivers Stadium, Pittsburgh Pirates, Pittsburgh, Pa. 13212, was established.

Nordiques defeat N.Y. Raiders, 6-5

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The hockey teams from the Province of Quebec had this thing about blowing third-period leads Monday night but one of them managed to pull out a victory anyway.

No, it wasn't the Montreal Canadiens. They settled for a 3-3 tie with the Minnesota North Stars in the only National Hockey League action. The victorious sextet was the Quebec Nordiques, who eked out a 6-5 triumph over the New York Raiders in the only World Hockey Association game on Yves Bergeron's goal after 2½ minutes of sudden-death overtime.

Nicklaus sees global golf tour

RANCHO LA COSTA, Calif. (AP) — Jack Nicklaus sees bigtime tournament golf going global with the United States providing only a segment of a rich tour that will lap over to other continents.

"Personally, I would like to see golf played on a seasonal basis in this country with more competition in foreign lands," the game's top player told Pacific Coast golf writers Monday night after they had honored him as the No. 1 player of last year.

"I don't know what that season is but I am in favor of fewer and more select tournaments. That way, we would be able to provide a more representative field for most of the sponsors."

Nicklaus, who won more than $320,000 on the U.S. tour last year while playing in about half of its 40-odd tournaments, said he wouldn't be surprised to see the Mexican Open and rich tournaments in Japan and Great Britain added to the tournament program in future years.

"I support the American tour but I think we should also support tournaments in other countries," the blond bomber from West Palm Beach, Fla., said in an interview. "After all, the American tour was not built by Americans alone but no one can say that fellows such as Roberto DeVicenzo, Gary Player and Tony Jacklin haven't made tremendous contributions to our tour. We owe them something."

Nicklaus was presented a silver crown proclaiming him the "King of Golf." He spent the day playing with writers over the La Costa course, annual scene of the MONY Tournament of Champions.

Tenace turns down trappings of fame

LUCASVILLE, Ohio (AP) — Oakland's unlikely hero in the 1972 World Series hasn't let success rob him of something money can't buy—a happy family life.

"I had opportunities. . .speaking engagements, television appearances," Athletics catcher Gene Tenace said during a recent interview at his trailer home in Southern Ohio.

He said he passed up one offer of $10,000 for an appearance in Las Vegas, Nev., and didn't intend to let his World Series feats change him.

Missouri wins controversial fray

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Missouri's victory over Southern Methodist couldn't have been any closer. It's also doubtful whether the narrow onepoint verdict could have evoked any more controversy.

John Brown pumped in a layup with no time showing on the clock as fifth-ranked Missouri edged SMU 74-73 in an intersectional college basketball game Monday night.

Umpire Pat Malette of the Big Eight Conference ruled the basket was legal despite an emphatic protest from the timekeeper that time had run out.

"I've been on the short end of this situation a few times," said Missouri Coach Norm Stewart. "It's tough but it happens."

SMU Coach Bob Prewitt was less than philosophical.

"The official (Malette) already had made up his mind. He should have consulted the timer," the angry cage boss exclaimed.

"The clock never went off and that's what has to be official," said Mallette. "If the shot goes off and we can't hear the buzzer, then I will consult the timer-that is the only time. But if the clock never goes off, all I can do is assume there is time left."

Freshman Ira Terrell, who led SMU with 26 points, had put his team ahead 73-72 with three seconds left. Missouri then called time with two seconds remaining. Steve Blind then took a half-court pass and missed his attempt, but Brown, who scored 35 points, grabbed the rebound and scored the controversial bucket.

The timekeeper, Bill Durrett, said when the clock was reset after the time out the buzzer wasn't turned on.

In other games involving teams in the Associated Press Top Twenty, Florida upset No. 9 Vanderbilt 80-72, No. 13 Southwestern Louisiana defeated Cincinnati 94-88 and No. 18 Florida State crushed Georgetown 101-70.

Gene Shy, a 6-foot-5 forward, scored 24 points as underdog Florida took an early 8-6 lead they never relinquished. Vanderbilt was handcuffed as 7-4 Steve Turner collected three fouls in the first five minutes.

Dwight Lamar sparked a SW Louisiana rally by scoring six of his game-high 32 points in the final two minutes.

The Seminoles recorded their second highest scoring total of the season, romping to a 56-34 halftime bulge and placing all five starters in double figures.

David Vaughn scored 34 points and hauled down a school record 34 rebounds as Oral Roberts romped past Brandeis 123-95. Ruben Montanez registered 22 points as Duquesne whipped St. Bonaventure 84-60.

In other games Monday night it was: Illinois St. 107, Morehead St. 91; Illinois 76, Wisconsin 74; Michigan 71, Iowa 59; Iowa St. 73, Oklahoma St. 59; Southern Mississippi 105, Missouri-St. Louis 83 and Kentucky 90, Mississippi St. 81.

Other results were: Southern Alabama 83, Fairfield 82; Georgia Tech 69, Rice 65; Furman 82, Niagara 77; New Mexico 87, St. Louis 67 and Utah St. 84, Texas Tech 76.

Solitary Vinton County doctor at odds with patients

By HENRY HEILBRUNN
Associated Press Writer

MCARTHUR, Ohio (AP) — A gas station attendant, like many a McArthur resident, griped about Dr. Altaf Hussain, the only doctor in Vinton County.

"He keeps office hours and won't see anybody other than those," he said.

Across the street, a man struggled to express how he felt about the 40-year-old Pakistani physician. "You'll understand what people think of him after you talk to him," he finally said. "You'll see. He's so different."

Dr. Hussain crisply countered: "I'm a modern doctor. I want to practice modern medicine."

Old and new, custom and change, the old-fashioned general practitioner and the brisk new breed, who moves patients through his office like big city doctors.

For a year now conflict has boiled in this hill county on the fringe of Appalachia, ever since a citizen search committee found Dr. Hussain in a miners' clinic in Washington County, Pa., in November, 1972.

The nervous question was: Will Dr. Hussain remain in Vinton County or will he leave the county's 9,424 residents without a doctor to call their own?

In the last half-century, 12 doctors have come to Vinton County, lingered awhile and then quit. Dr. Richard Bullock was the latest.

For 23 years he practiced medicine in rural Vinton County, the last dozen years as the only doctor in the county. Day after day he saw endless streams of patients, some of whom brought brown bag lunches for morning appointments. They might not be examined until 2 a.m. the next morning. Dr. Bullock sometimes slept what was left of a night in his office.

The routine broke his home and made him what local residents called "moody." Eventually it drove him out of McArthur, and left Vinton County without a doctor for nine months.

Dr. Hussain broke that routine. He keeps 9-to-noon hours in his downtown McArthur office. He sees patients briskly in a green examination room, asks brief, staccato questions, writes in a manila file folder and then rapidly dispenses prescriptions.

"I met him three times and he still doesn't remember my name," said the gas station attendant. "He won't take patients when they come in. He's never there when people need him."

Dr. Hussain said: "It's very difficult to get a general practitioner in a rural area. They have to do something for it."

The something appeared in Dr. Hussain's mind to be paying bills on time, perhaps appointing him county health commissioner and being loyal.

Dr. Hussain said he would avoid seeing any patient outside office hours — if he went 30 miles to an Athens hospital or clinic, frequented a chiropractor who moved shop three days a week to McArthur after Hussain's arrival, or saw another physician for a diagnosis.

In conservative Vinton County this attitude has bred hostility amont the hill folk.

"For 20 deliveries," said Dr. Hussain, "I have been paid for only two. Now I make them pay in advance."

He said welfare medical payments were six months behind.

He's getting some backing from the local drug store. A sign on its cash register read: "We take no new accounts. Emergency prescriptions for less than $5 payable within 10 days."

Dr. Hussain has muted his criticisms, particularly his earlier charges of racial bias. "Patients don't come because I'm a foreigner," he used to say. "Some people tried to run me out of town, but I fought back. I'm staying."

One newspaper quoted him as saying, "The people here are the funniest I've ever seen. There is always all this smalltown talk. They're very mean, very conservative."

"That's just not true," said a prominent McArthur woman. "He was accepted with open arms. When he first came here he had more patients than he could handle.

"Why would we want to run our only doctor out of town?" she asked. "I think Dr. Hussain's problem is he just likes to talk."

Things may be looking up. "It's difficult for any foreigner to come into an old established community and be accepted," said the chiropractor, Dr. Herman Shuttleworth. "These people have not been exposed to his kind of big city methods. They seem to accept him a lot better now."

Dr. Hussain said: "They should appreciate my sacrifice. I left a well-paid job — the highest on the staff with just a little paper work — to come here."

His wife, dressed smartly in a lavender, purple and red pants suit in geometric design, added: "People should realize they need a doctor here. They should accept that we are different as we accept their difference."

During the year-long controversy, Dr. Hussain's patients dropped to 10 to 25 a day, but in recent weeks the number has been growing.

One reason may be his competence. Dr. Arnold Lee, the local dentist and a member of the search committee, said, "It wasn't a doctor or not. Hussain has a good education and experience."

Hussain holds degrees from King Edwards Medical College of Lahore, Pakistan, with postgraduate work in surgery in London, and internships in Chicago and Milwaukee. He settled his wife and three children in the United States about 18 months ago.

Dr. Shuttleworth said, "He has the ability to diagnose from a physical examination, which is what a small community needs that's not accessible to modern facilities." Still the basic question isn't resolved. Dr. Hussain lives and practices in McArthur, but he hangs his only shingle in Nelsonville in neighboring Athens County. McArthur patients have to know Dr. Hussain's office is in the dentist's building, because there is no sign outside.

"I'm watching my Nelsonville practice very carefully," said Dr. Hussain, who spends his afternoons there. But, he said his transplant in Ohio is permanent enough that he bought land in the north part of Vinton County on which to build a home.

Makes furniture with metal grills

PARIS (AP) — Some people are always in a hurry. Now they can furnish their apartment in an hour with a new erector set for grownups.

Avant-garde couturier Jacques Esterel has just turned "interior designer," if you can call it that. The force behind the furniture is " do it yourself."

His kingsize construction set will be easily identified by anyone who has ever bought a box of cornflakes. It's made of the same thing as supermarket carts.

With just over a cubic yard of the grills, you can turn out enough furniture to fill a 20-foot-square room. A 21-square-inch grill will cost about $8, and it takes four of them to construct a table. Holding things together are steel tubes at $3 each.

But a chair or table is child's play when faced with the infinite possibilities of a steel rack. With a sheet of gray plastic to breach occasional gaps, the creative adult can pull together a folding screen, a sofa, decorative wallhangings, a library of bookshelves or a playpen.

In contrast, the pragmatic will think of birdcages, towel racks and something to broil a stead on. You can also install Esterel's new furniture in the window — to keep burglars out or the absent-minded in.

"I'm all it takes not to be a couturier. I'm an engineer and the father of a family," says Esterel.

His new "at home" couture is engineered too. Instead of beginning with a dress and presenting "do it yourself" seamstresses with the pattern, he is now busy making patterns and seeing what they shape out as.

Psyching a 7-Year-Old

The psychologist at my son's school suggested that we have some elaborate tests done.

What can be learned about the behavior of a 7-year-old child from these tests?

Mr. and Mrs. T. E., Ill.

Dear Mr. and Mrs. E.:

I am sure that the pyschologist would not have suggested psychological testing unless your son showed evidence of emotional problems.

A teacher is in an excellent position to observe a child in his relationship with others in his class. His mental prowess and his emotional balance are evaluated by a discerning teacher.

Poor attention span, irritability, unusual aggressive behavior, a too-shy, withdrawn attitude may all be apparent at school, but not as readily recognized in the home environment.

Some parents react with hostility if a teacher or psychologist suggests the need for further study. These same parents would not hesitate to follow the instructions of a doctor if any physical symptom presented itself.

Other parents take the attitude that only time alone is necessary to handle their child's emotional problems. But time should not be depended on to solve a problem that demands immediacy.

A great many important conclusions can be arrived at by the many psychometric studies now available. Interpretation of these tests by highly trained observers may offer a single clue to a child's behavior pattern.

With proper direction, and the coordinated effort of the psychologist, the educator, and the parents, a child can reap many benefits with early and intensive psychological studies.

By all means, follow the suggestion of the school psychologist. It is an excellent testimonial to the school and educationsl system when teachers have the insight to understand the emotional structure of their pupils.

Is a painful spur on the heel a form of arthritis?

Miss A. B., Vt.

Dear Miss B.:

Spurs are deposits of calcium in the muscles and the tendons attached to the heels. They can be exceedingly painful, and interfere with walking activity. Sometimes they can be protected with sponge rubber to avoid further injury and further pain.

In many cases, surgery is a simple and effective method of treatment.

Spurs are not generally considered to be a form of arthritis.

Sometimes my doctor uses water and at other times he uses a pick to take wax out of my ears.

Which method is better?

Mr. L. L., Ore.

Dear Mr. L.:

When wax is firm, hard, and impacted, a special blunt instrument is used to remove it.

Soft wax can be more easily removed by syringing.

Both methods are effective. People who tend to accumulate wax should have it removed at regular frequent intervals rather than wait until it is painful or impacted.

Opening lead - king of clubs.

Let's assume you're in four spades and West starts out with the K-A of clubs, East playing the 8-2 to show a doubleton. When West continues with the jack, you ruff in dummy with the nine, which East overruffs with the jack. Having lost three tricks, you are obliged — in the fullness of time — to try the heart finesse. When this fails, you finish down one.

If you are of an inquisitive nature and start to wonder whether or not the hand could have been made, you can quickly discover that you could have — and should have — made the hand.

It all goes back to trick three, when West led the jack of clubs and you ruffed high in dummy and got overruffed by East. Instead of trumping the third round of clubs in dummy, hoping that East would be unable to overtrump, it would have been wiser to discard a heart from dummy.

For practical purposes, this would have insured the contract. Whatever West played next, you would draw trumps as rapidly as possible, cash the A-K of diamonds and A-K of hearts, then cash the queen of diamonds and discard dummy's last heart, thus causing the heart loser to disappear.

It may seem strange that the best way of playing the hand is to make no effort whatever to win the third round of clubs — when there is obviously a chance of winning the trick by ruffing high in dummy.

But that is clearly the right thing to do under the circumstances, for, by doing so, you eliminate all chance of losing a heart trick later on. The long-term view of winning the contract takes precedence over the short-term view of winning the trick.

Hearty sneeze brings back woman's hearing

COVENTRY, England (AP) — A 22-year-old worker in an auto factory here says a sneeze has ended a lifetime of almost total silence.

"I can hear, I can hear," Jean Haynes shouted after the loud sneeze.

Miss Haynes has been virtually deaf since birth. Recently, she found she was allergic to the plastic foam used in the plant department where she worked. She started sneezing and couldn't stop — once going for six hours.

Miss Haynes was transferred to another department, but she gave one final sneeze Saturday. Doctors believe the head-jerking sneezes unblocked a tube connecting her middle ear and nose.

There's just one problem. Miss Haynes said she has trouble sleeping. Too much noise.

January sales seem to be the order of the day. Along Court Street we see much action and some real savings in some of the stores. Why fight it? So we here at the Camera Shop, too, have many items reduced which can help with your hobby budget. Photo books, film, accessories, even cameras have been reduced. Projectors especially are a good buy this season. Give it a think.

Winter classes will soon start at CK-FN. By soon we mean sometime in early February. Here is your chance to get with it in the hobby of photography. Come in and find out more about these photo classes. The field of photography is a vast area of excitement and fun. There is no limit to what can be done once you find the key to this photo magic.

By the way, did you ever hear of OSHA? You will, friend, you will. More about that later. But for now, have you read RICHARD NIXON — THE MAN BEHIND THE MASK, by Gary Allen? That's a book everyone should read. In paperback it's only two bucks. Come in and look over our book department.

Meet Pinnochio! . . .

A SALUTE FROM THE STAR — The star of Danny Deeds, D & M Production marionette show, "Pinnochio," hams it up for the cameraman a few minutes before he made his grand entrance before an appreciative crowd of several hundred children and adults at Miami Trace High School. Pinnochio's father, the toymaker and his dog CoCo are at the left.

"I'M A REAL BOY" — Pinnochio returns home to his father as a real boy in the final scene in the show, after somehow escaping the great carnivorous catfish. All the toys in his father's workshop come to life to celebrate his return.

BEHIND THE STAGE — Puppeteers check their strings for tangles and worn spots in last-minute preparations before the "Pinnochio" puppet show presented Monday at MTHS. The 102 custom-made marionettes used in the show were handled by 10 puppeteers.

New Holland Council approves 1973 funds

NEW HOLLAND — This village has now received a total of $2,571 in two payments from the federal government's revenue sharing program.

Mrs. Lincoln Schwart, clerk, reported to Council Monday night that the second payment of $1,259 has arrived and that the first payment amounted to $1,213. The money was earmarked for police protection.

Council also approved the 1973 appropriation budget of approximately $53,000. It will not go to the Pickaway County Board of Commissioners for its revision, approval or rejection.

At the start of the meeting, Council reorganized by re-electing Clarence Brown as president pro tem. Wilbur Frazier, the mayor, indicated no changes will be made in committee assignments.

A REQUEST by the Ohio Bell Telephone Co. to lay its cables underground along Arnold Road in the village from the corporation at the cemetery was granted.

Amos DeWitt's bid of $101.50 for the village's dump truck was rejected as being too low.

Council agreed to clamp down on the use of the village landfill for dumping refuse by non-residents and, because it has filled up so rapidly, approved plans for leveling it this week.

Council also agreed to pay $10 a month to keep the police cruiser in a garage owned by Margaret Noble and discussed at length vandalism in the village, especially that involving the trash collection containers on the streets.

Action on a request by Eddie Strausbaugh and Charles Root to make a section of School Street a one-way thoroughfare was postponed because, it was pointed out, the village has no police officers to enforce such an ordinance.

Board studies appropriations

Although they spent most of the day working on it, the Fayette County Commmissioners were unable to finish the county's 1973 appropriation measure Monday.

Commissioners Robert Mace, J. Herbert Perrill and Ray Warner met at 10 a.m. Tuesday to complete the process of consideration and trimming of appropriations requests from various county offices.

The Board of Commissioners reorganized for the coming year Monday, naming Mace chairman and Perrill vice chairman.

Council reorganizes Wednesday

Four ordinances and two resolutions will be on the agenda when City Council meets at 7 p.m. Wednesday in a session recessed from Dec. 27.

First item of business will be the annual reorganization ceremonies in which a 1973 chairman and vice chairman will be selected. The positions are now held by Hugh (Bud) Patton and Billie Wilson respectively.

ORDINANCES awaiting consideration would:

All four ordinances carry emergency tags.

THE TWO resolutions would (1) authorize the city manager to enter into an agreement with Fayette County for keeping prisoners and (2) authorize the city manager to enter into mutual aid fire protection contracts.

Also on the agenda are the city manager's report, the customary period for voters and taxpayers to address Council and suggestions by individual councilmen.

Cattle feeders hear Ed Johnson

Ed Johnson, executive secretary of the Ohio Cattlemen's Association was the guest speaker for the Fayette County Cattle Feeders Association annual meeting held Monday night. Attendance, which is normally near 250 - 275 cattle feeders, was down to 204 due to late corn harvest and the excellent harvest weather which prevailed Monday.

Johnson spoke briefly on the highlights of the annual meeting of the Ohio Cattlemen's Association last Week in Columbus. He said one of the successful activities was a news conference held to relate the cattlemen's story to the housewife who buys the finished product.

Johnson spoke of a bright picture for 1973 for the cattle industry with more beef being consumed. He told the cattle feeders that "1973 looks like an excellent year to be in the cattle feeding business."

In promoting the Ohio Cattlemen's Association, Johnson told the cattlemen present that it is their organization and that they should give it their full support through their membership. He left the cattlemen with a challenge to work together to build the cattle industry in the future.

Robert Haigler, a past president of the Ohio association, was master of ceremonies and introduced Johnson.

At the conclusion of the banquet, Haigler presented former county Extension Service Agent Phil Grover a plaque in appreciation of 17 years of service to the association.

During the business session John Bryant, past president of the Fayette County association, presented a slate of candidates for directors of the association. Directors elected, one per township to serve two-year terms are: Concord, Ray Jinks; John Bryant; Jasper, Rollo Gray; Jefferson, Ray Bentley; Madison, Norman Schiering; Marion, Alvin Writsel; Paint, Milbourne Barney; Perry, Edward McClure; Union, John Fetters; Wayne, Wayne Forsythe.

Dr. Ned Abbott, president of the county association, was in charge of overall banquet arrangements.
